IT'S A BIG SMALL WORLD

Dear Editor,

When international aid is frozen, America pays the price. Cutting off assistance may sound like putting America first, but in reality it weakens our economy, endangers our security, and gives ground to our adversaries.

I am a volunteer advocate for the Alliance for American Leadership. I joined because I believe America should lead on the world stage and international assistance is a critical way to make that happen. I became passionate about this issue after learning how cuts to aid programs impact our community. U.S. foreign assistance has helped stop diseases like HIV/AIDS, malaria, and Ebola before they reached our shores. I know people who have suffered from these diseases, and I've seen how vital prevention programs are. When we pull back from providing support – whether it's vaccines, clean water, or conflict prevention – the risks eventually come home.

U.S. international assistance serves as a smart investment in American strength. Programs that provide food, health care, and development overseas limit conflict and displacement that disrupts American interests. Think about the COVID-19 outbreak, where so many lives were displaced, especially here in Austin. If we invest in that 1% of our budget, we can help ensure that the U.S. combats outbreaks before they happen. It's also a benefit for our economy; most aid dollars are spent right here at home on American-grown food, medicines made by U.S. medical companies, and equipment from U.S. manufacturers. When we step back, nations like China and Russia step in – reshaping the world in ways that undermine U.S. influence and values.

I urge Sen. [John] Cornyn, Sen. [Ted] Cruz, and [U.S. Rep. Lloyd] Doggett to protect these effective programs that put American security, prosperity, and leadership first.

STATE SWEEPS LEFT CITY IN THE DARK

Gov. Greg Abbott ordered 48 homeless encampments in Austin be cleared by state troopers and the Texas State Guard, reported KXAN; the state claims the sweeps resulted in the removal of 3,000 pounds of debris, the seizure of 125 grams of narcotics, and the arrest of 24 repeat felony offenders. The governor's office said the initiative is ongoing, but on Tuesday, Austin leaders revealed they were not notified by state agencies of the operation and that it in fact interfered with the city's own already-scheduled operation "focused on connecting the displaced to social services," the Statesman reported. "I am disappointed today because some of what we're seeing with regard to addressing people living homeless is, frankly, not how it's supposed to work," said Mayor Kirk Watson.

IS FEMA ICING OUT KERR COUNTY?

An Oct. 16 Texas Tribune report determined that the Federal Emergency Management Agency has denied or not advanced most of the aid applications of Kerr County flood survivors. Nearly half of applications hadn't been reviewed past the initial stage yet; of those applications that did advance, only one-fifth were deemed eligible for financial help by the agency. In contrast, other counties also impacted by flooding but with fewer applications and less extensive damage have received a higher proportion of approvals from FEMA — $37 million so far. Trump — who began construction this week on a $200 million ballroom at the White House — has said that he wants Americans to "wean off of FEMA" and that the government should "give out less money" to states recovering from disasters.

Gina Hinojosa Wants Greg Abbott's Job

Austin rep enters the race for governor as the anti-corruption candidate BY BRANT BINGAMON

Austin's education warrior in the Texas House of Representatives, Gina Hinojosa, traveled to the Rio Grande Valley last week to make it official: She's running for governor. More than a hundred family and friends packed into a small room in downtown Brownsville to celebrate her decision, chanting the representative's campaign slogan, "No te dejes!"

"No te dejes" doesn't have a literal translation in English. "It is a combination of 'Fight back' and 'Don't let yourself be pushed around,'" Hinojosa told the Chronicle. "It is something my grandmother always said to me, and it was like a tough-love statement, almost like a scold: 'No te dejes!' — 'Know your worth, and defend it!'"

In a video announcing her candidacy, and in press releases and personal appearances in the campaign's first week, Hinojosa has hammered on a central message — that Republican Gov. Greg Abbott is deeply corrupt. "He is the most corrupt governor in Texas history," she repeated to us. "Time

CITY, COUNTY OFFICIALS DECLARE WILDFIRE RISK: Mayor Kirk Watson and Travis County Judge Andy Brown announced Monday that they both signed disaster declarations as a wildfire prevention effort. This comes after two fires broke out on Sunday and were contained by the Austin Fire Dept., the Austin Monitor reports. Mayor Watson urged the public to be prepared for wildfires in their neighborhoods and to sign up for Warn Central Texas, an emergency alert system. "Austin now ranks fifth in the nation in the number of homes facing wildfire risks," Mayor Watson said, as he warned about dry conditions.

"IDEOLOGICAL DIFFERENCES": On Sunday, Gov. Greg Abbott confirmed in a post on X that UT-Austin's senior vice provost for academic affairs, Art Markman, was fired because of "ideological differences," according to KUT. In the post, Abbott said, "Texas is targeting professors who are more focused on pushing leftist ideologies rather than preparing students to lead our nation. We must end indoctrination and return to education fundamentals at all levels of education." Markman, who has been a professor of psychology at UT for 27 years and in the provost's office since 2021, told KUT he will remain a faculty member in the College of Liberal Arts. Markman is also the co-host of the long-running KUT News program Two Guys on Your Head, which explores human behavior.

and time again, he will prioritize corporate interests, corporate greed, over the people of Texas. He's got a record that speaks for itself, and I'll be speaking about it a lot."

As rumors of her candidacy made the rounds this September, Hinojosa laid the groundwork for her corruption allegations, calling attention to a report by Public Citizen, the nonprofit consumer rights advocates. The report found that since 2020 Abbott has repeatedly declared state emergencies, allowing him to circumvent the state's competitive bidding process and award no-bid contracts worth almost a billion dollars. According to the report, the companies receiving the contracts have contributed about $3 million to Abbott.

"We identified eight companies that received non-competitive, emergency contracts from the state, most of which were tied to recent disasters such as COVID-19, hurricanes, or border security," the report reads. "In each instance, a company, its owners, or its executives donated large amounts to Gov. Abbott through his Texans for Greg Abbott PAC."

The executives identified by Public Citizen did not include Pennsylvania billionaire Jeff Yass, who gave Abbott a record-setting $12 million last year as the governor moved heaven and earth to win approval of a private school voucher program allowing families to spend public taxpayer money on private schools for their children. Hinojosa has criticized Abbott for accepting the donation. She is also criticizing Texas Comptroller Kelly Hancock for providing a $50 million contract to Odyssey, a tech company that received a $500,000 prize from Yass in 2023, to oversee the voucher program. "It is a grift," Hinojosa told a CBS reporter last week. "It is a way to pad the pockets of the well-connected."

Hinojosa said it is the cozy relationships detailed in the Public Citizen report that have helped Abbott collect his massive $87 million war chest. "We're campaigning on that," she said. "I mean, you don't get that kind of campaign cash doing the bidding of the people. Abbott has that amount of campaign money because he is corrupt. So he can keep his dirty money, and we'll get the people of Texas on our side." Hinojosa has less than a thousandth of Abbott's cash on hand – only $72,000.

Hinojosa got started in politics in 2012, when she joined the campaign to save her son's school, Allan Elementary, from being taken over by a charter school company. She won a seat on the Austin ISD school board, voted to stop the takeover, and helped inaugurate the current era of progressive representation on the board. Four years later, Austin voters sent Hinojosa to the Texas House, where she served on the public education committee, becoming, in the opinion of fellow Rep. Donna Howard and other colleagues, one of the Legislature's premier fighters for local schools. "Her fierce advocacy provides a sharp contrast to Abbott's legacy of short-changing and privatizing our public education system," Howard told us.

Howard is one of many Democrats endorsing Hinojosa, who will first take on rancher Bobby Cole and businessman Andrew White, son of former governor Mark White, in the Democratic primary in the spring. The list includes U.S. Reps. Lloyd Doggett, Greg Casar, and Jasmine Crockett; Texas Sens. Sarah Eckhardt and Roland Gutierrez; House members John Bucy, Erin Zwiener, and Mihaela Plesa; and many local elected officials. "I have tremendous admiration for Gina's bravery and tenacity," Sen. Eckhardt told us. "From her time on the Austin school board through her tenure in the Legislature, she finds leverage and works it until she gets movement."

"She's Abbott's worst nightmare."

POLITICAL STRATEGIST
DAVID BUTTS

Abbott has not been seriously threatened in any of his three campaigns for governor. In the closest, in 2022, he flattened Beto O'Rourke by 11 percentage points. However, a poll taken this summer shows that the governor's approval rating has faltered, with Texas voters saying that corruption is the top problem facing the state and country. And Democratic political insiders love the contrast that the charismatic Hinojosa presents with a governor who is often dour and lecturing

"She's Abbott's worst nightmare," Austin's dean of political strategists, David Butts, told us. "She's younger, she's got more energy, she's a woman, and she's Hispanic. And that appeals to a cross-section of the electorate that probably feels somewhat dumped on by Greg Abbott and his authoritarian ways." ■

Discover Healing:

Local Clinic Offers Breakthrough Solution for Shingles and Postherpetic Neuralgia

Shingles, a sinister foe that strikes with searing pain and emerges as a painful rash. While shingles itself is a harrowing experience, its aftermath can be equally debilitating, known as Postherpetic neuralgia (PHN). This relentless pain persists long after the initial shingles outbreak, lingering for months or even years.

For Georgia W., the agony lingered for almost eight excruciating months. The initial encounter with shingles was an ordeal in itself, but what followed was a protracted nightmare.

"I felt like I was trapped in a never-ending storm of pain, each day darker and more agonizing than the last. It's hard to say this now, but I was at a point where life wasn't worth living."

The Beacon of Hope: Rosedale Acupuncture & Wellness

Amidst the darkness, Georgia discovered a beacon of hope – Rosedale Acupuncture & Wellness and their ground-breaking ATP Resonance BioTherapy®.

ATP Resonance BioTherapy® targets damaged cells affected by injury or illness, rejuvenating their energy production and providing the essential fuel for healing and repair. It's a proven, medical solution for those whose cells are depleted and can no longer recover on their own.

Dr. Lucas Brown, explains the science behind the therapy: "In conditions like shingles and postherpetic neuralgia, the cells' energy is depleted, hindering their ability to recover. ATP Resonance BioTherapy® steps in as a precise intervention, restoring cellular energy and facilitating the healing process at its core."

Your Path To Healing Starts Here

Just one month later, Georgia found herself having more good days than bad, and eventually, she got her zest for life back. Her testament to Rosedale Acupuncture's transformative approach resonates with overwhelming joy.

"I never imagined I would be preparing Thanksgiving dinner for my entire family without the looming threat of pain. Rosedale Acupuncture gave me back my life, and as I stirred pots and set the table, I found myself eternally grateful for them."

Rosedale Acupuncture Wellness specializes in treating complicated conditions and chronic pain, ranging from persistent sciatica to challenging cases like failed back surgeries and fibromyalgia. What sets them apart is their commitment to treating the root cause of pain through integrative therapies, not just masking symptoms with a temporary fix.

An Integrative Approach

Dr. Brown emphasizes their approach: "Our mission is to unravel the complexities of pain, not merely mask symptoms. Whether it's a common ailment or a formidable condition, we strive to provide lasting relief through integrative therapies tailored to each individual."

To those grappling with the aftermath of shingles or other chronic pain, Rosedale Acupuncture extends an invitation to embark on a journey to lasting wellness.

Don't let pain dictate the terms of your life. Rosedale Acupuncture & Wellness is here to guide you toward a future free from the chains of suffering. Your triumph over pain starts with a Consultation.

GRAND PRIX AGREES TO PARK IT LONG-TERM IN AUSTIN: On Sunday, the Circuit of the Americas and Formula 1 announced that the United States Grand Prix will stay in Austin through the 2034 season. In a press release, Formula 1 President & CEO Stefano Domenicali thanked the city, state, and Gov. Abbott for their support of the event. "As Formula 1 continues to grow and thrive in the United States, we are proud to extend our partnership with Bobby Epstein and his outstanding team in Austin, as well as with Governor Abbott, whose leadership has been instrumental in supporting the sport's development in Texas and beyond," Domenicali said. Red Bull driver Max Verstappen claimed his fifth victory at last weekend's race in Austin and now ranks third in F1 drivers' standings.

FLOOD INSURANCE PILOT PROGRAM: The city is partnering with Del Valle Community Coalition on a pilot program that will provide up to $2,000 in financial assistance to Austin homeowners to obtain or maintain flood insurance for one year. The Flood Insurance Assistance Program aims to support residents in high-risk flood areas by reducing financial barriers to coverage.

WHEATSVILLE BAGS EXPANSION PLANS: CultureMap reports that the Wheatsville Co-op will not move forward with plans to open new stores in Hyde Park and Allandale. The expansion, which was announced in July and meant to replace the Co-op's Guadalupe store when it closes next year, is no longer "financially viable." General manager Bill Bickford said they remain open to other options, but don't expect to find suitable real estate before the Guadalupe store's lease expires. Instead, they plan to focus on keeping their remaining location on South Lamar going strong.

Texans Vote on a $20 Billion Investment in Water

Prop 4 funds water projects but experts encourage watching where the money goes BY SAMMIE SEAMON

It's not a secret that Texas is running out of water. By 2070, our municipal demand is projected to outstrip the water that exists in our state by over 3 million acre-feet. The gargantuan Ogallala Aquifer, providing West Texas with water, will likely deplete within our lifetimes and takes centuries to recharge. In Austin, as summer turns to autumn, drought has resurfaced with the fifth-driest September on record. Austin's local groundwater conservation district has declared the Edwards Aquifer to be in "exceptional drought" for only the second time in history, as of Oct. 1.

"The winter months are some of our driest, and so with the way things are right now, we expect to see [ground]water levels to continue to gradually decline," Shay Hlavaty of the Barton Springs-Edwards Aquifer Conservation District said.

Hydrologists say the solutions for the state's water problem are to conserve what we have and procure or create new sources of water, and the Texas Legislature has chosen to invest serious money into both. During this year's session, lawmakers passed House Joint Resolution 7 and the accompanying Senate Bill 7, proposing a new constitutional amendment to give $20 billion over 20 years to the Texas Water Fund – a long-term investment that will attempt to close the gap on our future demand for water.

Amendments to the state constitution must be voted on by Texans, and so HJR 7 will appear as Proposition 4 on ballots Nov. 4. Though oddly not clear in the ballot language, Prop 4 proposes that the state spend $1 billion a year, from 2027 to 2047, on water-creating and conserving projects across the state. The money will come from state sales tax revenue and doesn't raise or create new taxes for Texans.

If Prop 4 is approved by voters, SB 7 kicks in and gives the Texas Water Development Board, appointed by Gov. Greg Abbott, authority over how the funds will be spent and on what projects, which must be a 50/50 split between "new water supply" projects (mainly through expensively purifying very dirty water or seawater back into drinking water) and implementing the State Water Plan, which includes water conservation and reuse projects and is created by several regional planning groups across the country.

The money can also go toward fixing leaky pipes and infrastructure across the state, which currently lose 186 billion gallons of water annually – enough to fill a large reservoir. "Even fixing one leaky pipe can make a great impact for a neighborhood," Evgenia Spears of the Sierra Club said.

On the "new water" side, Prop 4 would also fund massive marine desalination plants, built along the Texas coast – a controversial project among environmentalists. The salt is removed from water taken from the Gulf of Mexico and purified into drinkable water. That salt has to go somewhere though, and the brine (extremely salty water) these plants produce is usually either buried underground, pumped back out into the sea (either close to the shore or far out, via huge pipes), or dumped into inland bays and estuaries along the coast.

Spears said that when brine is dumped into bays and estuaries, the salt can kill marine life and even endangered species that call those pools home. Unlike when it's piped back out in the Gulf, the water doesn't mix and dilute quickly enough in a smaller body of water. Moreover, Spears emphasized that the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality's salinity standards for the discharge of brackish water from marine desalination are "close to nonexistent," which should be part of the state's surface water quality standards. But, Spears said, no updates on salinity are expected in the next revision of those standards.

"So until the TCEQ develops strong, enforceable, and very clear standards for salinity, we can't safely and responsibly embark on seawater desalination," Spears emphasized. "A lot more work needs to be done, and Texas is simply not ready yet."

Nonetheless, other experts view marine desalination as a necessary and relatively sustainable step for our future water – the ocean won't soon dry up like aquifers will – but agree that the brine needs to be disposed of responsibly. Preferably, piped over 3 miles out into the Gulf.

Another project listed in SB 7 is the purification of "produced" water, the immense amount of water used (around 33 million barrels every day in Texas) to push oil and gas out of the earth in the fracking process. That is very dirty water, and yet remains another strategy prompted by the state's desperation for new water sources.

Nevertheless, Spears said that scientists don't know exactly what chemicals are in it, and therefore don't know exactly how to treat the water, due to oil and gas companies not being required by the state of Texas to report that chemical information. "We're talking about heavy metals, organic and inorganic compounds, and even radioactive materials, plus that set of unknown chemicals," Spears emphasized.

"We understand that Texas needs to unlock new water supplies, but we are for responsible approaches, sustainable approaches," Spears continued. "And due to lacking regulations or lacking science, many ... are not responsible or sustainable at this moment."

Prop 4 will create a steady stream of funding to fix much-needed water infrastructure and water reuse projects in the state, but environmental organizations like the Sierra Club and the Texas Water Foundation urge Texans to watch how the funds are used, to ensure that the state doesn't use our green light to funnel billions toward projects that only further hurt the environment. "It's important that Texans know that they have a say in how these funds are allocated," Spears said. "Proposition 4 is public money, and it needs to work for the people – not special interests." ■

TRANSIT PLAN 2035: CapMetro's board of directors voted Monday to majorly overhaul its transit system, reports KUT. Transit Plan 2035 lays out steps to launch a light rail line in 2033 and gradually shrink bus routes from 61 to 55 while also running remaining lines more frequently and into the night and adding more east-west connections.

TRASH COMPACT: At press time, UT still had not publicly announced whether it will agree to a 10-point "compact" presented by the Trump administration, which guarantees funding to universities that agree to conservative action items regarding DEI, admissions, and campus culture. So far, seven of the nine schools offered the deal have rejected it.

GOP SOCIAL MEDIA STRATEGY - SHITPOSTING AND DEEPFAKES: President Trump responded to Saturday's nationwide No Kings rallies by posting an AI-generated video of himself as a fighter pilot wearing a crown, dumping feces all over protesters. The National Republican Senate Committee also used artificial intelligence to falsely depict Senate Democratic Leader Chuck Schumer saying on camera about the shutdown that "every day gets better for us" - a quote pulled from a print interview Schumer gave Punchbowl News explaining why he thinks the Dems' strategy of focusing on health care is working. A Republican spokesperson shrugged off concerns about the use of deepfakes in politics: "AI is here and not going anywhere. Adapt & win or pearl clutch & lose."

ROCKING IN THE NEW YEAR: The Red River Cultural District announced the return of Free Week, the annual admission-free, all-ages celebration of live music. The winter fest is set for Jan. 9-10; organizers are accepting applications now for Austin-based artists, bands, and DJs to perform in paid gigs at more than 10 downtown venues.

No Cults, No Crowns

Tens of thousands march against Trump administration at Austin's No Kings rally BY SAMMIE SEAMON

On Saturday, October 18, on the steps of the state Capitol, speakers including Rep. Lloyd Doggett, Rep. Greg Casar, and Rep. Gina Hinojosa looked out into a crowd of tens of thousands of Texans, raising thousands of handmade signs, gathered for the second No Kings rally in Austin. "You should see this crowd from here," Hinojosa said.

There were more than 2,700 No Kings events held across the country on Saturday, with organizers estimating nearly 7 million in attendance nationwide and over 20,000 in Austin.

Locally, the sea of posters directly confronted Donald Trump's administration as a threat to democracy and spoke to this deeply disturbing moment in American politics. "Stop pretending your racism is patriotism." "Imagine hating an immigrant more than a pedophile." "Release the Trumpstein Files." "Anti-Fascist Grandma." Several attendees held up campaign signs for Rep. James Talarico, now running for the U.S. Senate, and Hinojosa, who announced her run for governor against Gov. Greg Abbott last Wednesday.

"We're marching for the immigrants who built this country, and children who should feel safe in their schools," Sophia Mirto, president of Hands Off Central Texas, said into the megaphone. "We're marching for ourselves and our neighbors."

Above the speakers, soldiers in green scanned the crowd through binoculars. Gov. Greg Abbott announced on Thursday that he would deploy state troopers and National Guard soldiers to Austin for the "antifa-linked demonstration," though No Kings was organized by nonpartisan nonprofits like Hands Off Central Texas. Mayor Kirk Watson made a statement before the event, saying, "We are told that the Guard will not be on the streets of Austin unless there is a determination that there is an emergency need." The Austin Police Department later tweeted that the rally had been entirely peaceful with zero reported arrests.

The mass began marching down Congress Avenue toward Auditorium Shores, chanting "Fuck Trump" and "Immigrants built this nation." Clad in red, white, and blue, David Barrow, in his 70s, had driven into Austin from Georgetown to march alongside his wife. "We're out here walking for our grandchildren," Barrow said. "The corruption and the hatred coming from the MAGA movement ... My father fought in World War II.

Our parents fought fascism, and you know, I guess it's our turn."

Emily Salazar has admired Hinojosa's father, Gilberto, for years as a representative of her community, and marched holding his daughter's campaign sign. "My family comes from Mexico, they were migrant farm workers," Salazar said. "It's for my family, all immigrants, all young people."

At Auditorium Shores, organizations like Mothers Against Gun Violence, the Sierra Club, and Save Our Springs tabled for new volunteers and had speakers onstage. UT-Austin students handed out protest flyers against the university, which is poised to sign the White House's "compact," an agreement for funding that could threaten women's and ethnic studies and further eliminate use of gender and race in admissions.

Greg Stoker, an Austinite detained last month by the Israeli military alongside other activists while attempting to deliver humanitarian aid into Gaza, stepped up to the microphone to emphasize that while the highly organized No Kings rally served as a powerful community-building event, Americans should do more than simply march once in neatly permitted zones.

"Our safety does not come from submission. It comes from solidarity," Stoker said. "This violence started long before [Trump] and will continue long after he's gone ... After today, we'll start doing the real work." ■

Texans' Health Insurance Costs Are Set to Double

Open enrollment starts next month with discounts vanished

BY MAGGIE QUINLAN

Every autumn since 2014, low-income Texans have turned to Medicaid and the Affordable Care Act Marketplace to get health coverage. Nov. 1 the cycle begins again, but it won't be business as usual.

Austin's junior congressman, Greg Casar, struck an ominous tone last month: "You may not know it, but your health care costs are about to go way up."

On Oct. 11, Austin's outgoing congressman, Lloyd Doggett, posted: "Austinites are about to be hit with enormous health insurance premium spikes. Why? Because Republicans let the government shut down instead of negotiating with Democrats to save ACA health care tax credits."

Politicians aren't the only ones issuing warnings about the upcoming enrollment season. Researchers at Texas A&M University say more than 4 million Texans will see higher health insurance prices next year, and roughly 800,000 are likely to become uninsured because they can't afford it.

So, what's going on?

A SHOWDOWN OVER DISCOUNTS IN D.C.

To set the stage for the upcoming enrollment period, we have to rewind to this summer, when the passage of One Big Beautiful Bill cut deeply into Medicaid. The bill accomplished this by making it much harder to qualify for coverage. The result will be 10 million more uninsured Americans.

Now, the debate over ACA subsidies is at the heart of the ongoing, weeks-long standoff in Washington which has shut the federal government down. Democrats say they won't vote to reopen the government unless Republicans agree to keep deeper discounts – also known as enhanced subsidies – that Congress introduced in 2021.

Health insurance is complicated, especially in Texas, so it's worth a quick refresher: Medicaid is government health care offered for free or at low cost to low-income Americans. ACA Marketplace plans largely serve people with higher incomes who can't get insurance through their employer. ACA plans are private insurance, but eligible recipients get discounts on their monthly premiums, which are covered by subsidies (also called tax credits).

With ACA subsidies expiring, the country is at a tipping point: 22 million Americans will lose discounts by the end of the year, and about 80% of them live in states that Donald Trump won in the last election, The Washington Post reports.

As ever, Texas is in a unique position. It has the worst uninsured rate in the nation, according to census data.

That's partly because Texas is one of 10 states that refused to expand Medicaid, so only people in the most extreme situations are eligible for it. As a result, the state also relies heavily on ACA Marketplace plans.

The full effects of slashed ACA subsidies won't become clear for weeks, but Idaho offers a preview. There, open enrollment began on Oct. 15. NBC reported on an Idaho couple in their 60s who currently pay $51 a month for their ACA plan. Their monthly premium will hike to $2,232 next year. Their case is extreme, but Idaho state health officials say average out-of-pocket premiums in the state will shoot up 75% without the tax credits.

The impact will be bigger in Texas. According to the A&M researchers, the average out-of-pocket premium in Texas will more than double. They predict one in five Texans will be uninsured as a result.

The problem doesn't end there: Health insurance costs will likely rise for everyone who doesn't lose their coverage. That's because when premiums are expensive, it's usually healthy people who decide to go uninsured. "The people left behind are going to be the more expensive enrollees," health reporter Paige Winfield Cunningham explained for The Washington Post. "You need plenty of those healthy people to keep costs down. And when they drop off and decide to be uninsured, that's just a double whammy."

AUSTINITES STEP UP TO INSURE THE COMMUNITY

The Austin nonprofit that Walter Moreau directs has helped tens of thousands of Austinites enroll in health insurance.

One case sticks out in his mind: a 27-year-old man who had just been kicked off his parents' plan. He wasn't enthusiastic about paying for health insurance, but he enrolled with Foundation Communities' navigators anyway.

Three months later, he showed up at the Foundation Communities office. "He hobbled in and took X-rays of his broken leg and plopped it on the counter. And he said, 'I just came by to say thank you,'" Moreau told the Chronicle. The man had crashed his skateboard and went to the ER with a bone sticking out of his leg. The hospital bill was more than $30,000. Thanks to his coverage, he only had to pay $350, Moreau recalls.

"Every one of us is one accident away from the ER, right?" Moreau told the Chronicle. "If you don't have health insurance, then all of us bear the cost."

The A&M researchers wrote that ending the subsidies will "reduce federal spending while increasing the financial burden on individuals, families, and health care providers, particularly in states like Texas."

That's why Moreau calls Foundation Communities' enrollment work a public service. Last year, they helped insure 6,000 people. But this year, they're hampered by another federal move: DOGE cuts. Foundation Communities lost the $2.4 million federal grant that supported its enrollment program.

Moreau said Austinites have stepped up. Last year, the nonprofit had 127 volunteers in the program. This year, it's more than 300. Meanwhile, Central Health, Travis County's hospital district, agreed to chip in $1.2 million.

"If you don't have health insurance, then all of us bear the cost."

WALTER MOREAU OF FOUNDATION COMMUNITIES

The A&M economists write that "there is no shortage of policy ideas" to help insure more Texans: Federal lawmakers could keep the subsidies, Texas could offer state-level subsidies, or the state could expand Medicaid. A survey this year found that 70% of Texans support expanding Medicaid to cover more low-income people.

At the local level, Foundation Communities is supporting Proposition Q on the November ballot in Austin. It would raise the local tax rate, giving the city more money to offset losses from federal cuts.

Moreau and Foundation Communities have weathered other storms – the 2008 recession and COVID-19 pandemic among them.

"I don't think we have any period of time to compare where it's felt like the things we value and care about have been so under attack," Moreau said. "But I'm trying to keep some historical perspective. We've been through evil, dark times before where people with courage had to fight to end slavery, and to give women the right to vote. Maybe America is still in the formation stage of higher ideals."

Open enrollment through healthcare.gov runs from Nov. 1 to Jan. 15 (note that that's shorter than years past). Enroll by Dec. 15 for coverage that starts Jan. 1. Receive help from Foundation Communities at foundcom.org/health-coverage.

"The Mixtape Exhibit" Celebrates Hip-Hop History

GRAMMY Museum collection makes a stop at LBJ Presidential Library through Jan. 4

Hip-hop is officially middle-aged, but its mortality is hardly in question. Half a century after the genre's birth, the GRAMMY Museum celebrated the lovechild of funk and DJ culture with an expansive exhibit at its Los Angeles home base. Now, the Recording Academy is keeping the party going, sending the collection out on the road. Until Jan. 4, poignant artifacts of hip-hop's cultural influence on music, fashion, dance, street art, and activism are on display at the LBJ Presidential Library.

Walking through the display starts as it should: with sound. L.A. dance pioneer Egyptian Lover's original Roland TR-808 drum machine, adorned with his customized hieroglyphics, is the first thing you see upon entry. The tremble of an 808 beat has been recorded, re-digitized, and reused so many times that it's a household name. If you haven't heard of it, you've certainly heard its bass-blending, boombox-quaking sound in hip-hop songs and beyond. Still, as my tour guide points out, many people have never been face-to-face with the machine behind the sound. Introducing audiences to the material culture behind sounds and trends is the name of the game for this exhibit.

As you step further into hip-hop's history, you'll brush up on its great coastal feud and the early record labels started by Dr. Dre and Jay-Z. Nearby, the young genre's interminable struggle against the music industry's maligned treatment of their artwork peeks through in notes on Wu-Tang Clan's label-lassoing power moves. Further in, an essay by Tupac and Chuck D's handwritten lyrics to Public Enemy's "Fight the Power" pull the scope back, reminding audiences that hip-hop was born of resistance to racism and bigotry everywhere.

Among the musical artifacts, influential fashion pieces serve as colorful reminders of beloved music videos and GRAMMY performances. Most strikingly, custom designer suits worn by Biggie Smalls and Tupac in music videos stand side-by-side. My tour guides tell me their position is at the request of the rappers' respective families – whatever that means for their families' retrospective feelings on their rivalry.

"By hosting Hip-Hop [America]: The Mixtape Exhibit, the LBJ Presidential Library is opening our doors to wider audiences and celebrating the power of music as history," writes Lara Hall, head museum curator at the LBJ Presidential Library, in a press release. "This exhibit helps us connect with new communities and share stories that reflect the breadth of the American experience."

In many ways, connecting and sharing is what hip-hop, and the many subgenres that have spun off of it, is all about. The exhibit links sound to object, ideas to artwork, album covers and music videos to the cars and clothing that cemented them in cultural memory.

The GRAMMY Museum's chief curator and VP of curatorial affairs, Jasen Emmons, and his team came to explore hip-hop regionality by necessity – place has always played a huge role in the artists' identities and lyrics – and, almost, by accident. Faced with incorporating a giant map of the United States in the exhibit's original L.A. location, the GRAMMY Museum curators were inspired to tackle hip-hop's locale-specific sounds.

"One of our advisors, Davey D, said something during a meeting one time that always stayed with me, which was: 'Acknowledging people in a scene is as important as artifacts,'" Emmons says. Consequently, a digital map on display at LBJ contains a list of acts broken down by region, contributed to by industry insiders and exhibit visitors across the nation.

Austin may not have a scene historic enough to be on the map (yet!), but clicking through Houston's list – or wherever your second home city may be – it's easy to get swept up in the mixture of pride and curiosity that underlies this exhibit as a whole.

Whether you're a beatboxing pro or a rhyme and rhythm novice, you'll find something to appreciate in this lowrider nostalgia cruise through five decades of beat-breaking cultural flow.

"[Hip-hop] has somehow been a form that's allowed a lot of flexibility, and it's built all this other culture around it that has continued to resonate with people," says Emmons. "For us, as part of the Recording Academy, it was really important to try and tell the story in a broad, multifaceted way and try to reflect how important it is," Emmons says. "[Hip-hop] is not only not going away, it's continuing to have this incredible vitality." ■

CROSSTALK

Miller "Speedy" Sparks

GRAMMY Award-winning bassist for the Texas Tornados, passed away Oct. 7. Born in 1945, Sparks left an indelible imprint on Austin's music scene, and Texas at large, in his 79 years. The two-time recipient of an Austin Music Award co-founded Texas Tornados in 1989 with Doug Sahm, Freddy Fender, Flaco Jiménez, and Augie Meyers and brought his versatile playing to other Lone Star-rooted groups like the Texas Mavericks, Teddy and the Tall Tops, and the Sir Douglas Quintet, and musicians like Joe King Carrasco and the Velvet Underground's Sterling Morrison. Since his passing, the Houston-born musician has been lovingly remembered in tribute posts across the internet from former bandmates, friends, and family.

Texas Women for the Arts

has opened applications for its annual grant program. A part of the Texas Cultural Trust, the project provides funding to arts organizations throughout the state, including museums, festivals, and afterschool and educational programs in the visual, performing, literary, and music arts. 501(c)(3)-designated organizations must obtain sponsorship from one of the 200 current TWA members before applying by Dec. 1.

Tito's Handmade Vodka

announced a partnership with Sonic Guild on Oct. 15. The Texas-based liquor brand will offer independent artists $10,000 tour grants. The first group of recipients include three 2025 ACL performers: Austin folk duo Briscoe, New Haven R&B artist Aaron Page, and Nashville pop trio Moody Joody.

Austin Arts, Culture, Music and Entertainment

grant applications opened Oct. 21 under newly established guidelines. After a tumultuous year of reorganizing, gathering community input, and funding cuts, the newly established city office presents recalibrated opportunities for artists and arts organizations. Elevate, Austin Live Music Fund, Creative Space Assistance Program, and Heritage Preservation Grant will all accept applications through Dec. 4.

Deseo Nightclub

opened Oct. 10 in the spirit – and 505 Naches location – of Cielo, which previously held the distinctive title of longest-running Latin nightclub in Austin. Cielo owner Elias Boukarim relaunched the club under a new name, writing in a press release that: "Deseo is more than a club – it's an experience built on energy, elegance, and connection."

AUSTIN BARS THAT OFFER More Than Booze!

From pool and games to dancing and community hangs, these locales are more hangout spots than watering holes ou've seen the trend pieces: As prices go up, sociability goes down, and society as a whole embraces sober (and sober-curious) culture, people are drinking less. That's great for our livers, but what about our hearts?

BY CARYS ANDERSON & CAROLINE DREW

Despite what COVID quarantine and antisocial political rhetoric has done to our brains, the people yearn for connection, and going out for drinks remains one of the easiest ways to find it. Luckily, bars across Austin have made it easy to reap the benefits of the practice even if you're not trying to get messy. From pool destinations and arcades to honky-tonks, music venues, and community centers, these bars put hanging out and having fun above their libation lists. Order a mocktail or good old-fashioned ginger ale – or a hard drink; we've selected our favorites – at these hallowed locales.

WHERE YOU GO: BARFLY'S

WHAT YOU DO: Play pool

WHAT YOU ORDER: $4 well

ALSO TRY: Table service at the Grand; the Little Burger at Frazier's Long & Low; cheap drinks at the Aristocrat Lounge

Someone tell Barfly's that Olive Garden abandoned its slogan over a decade ago and "When you're here, you're family" is fair game. With cult films on the televisions, decade-spanning rock & roll on the jukebox, and the lights damn near completely off at all times, this North Loop haunt, and its infamous upstairs walkup, is the platonic ideal of a dive bar – which is why you're bound to run into the same regulars over and over once you discover its charms. Cheap drinks and generous pours mean you can save your quarters for one of the space's pool tables – or its foosball setup and vintage arcade games, if that's your thing – and make friends with the always-friendly, never-hustling competitors waiting their turn. A spacious downstairs patio gives you plenty of room to smoke a cig or shoot the shit in between shooting shots in the billiards area – just watch your step on the way out.

WHERE YOU GO: COMMUNITY GARDEN

WHAT YOU DO: Mingle, doodle, dance, and chat

WHAT YOU ORDER: Wine

ALSO TRY: Subculture swaps, drag shows, and political organizing meet-ups at Double Trouble; political documentary screenings, resistance workshops, and patio performances at Once Over Coffee Bar; trivia, vinyl DJs, and motorbike nights at Tweedy's

Community Garden's dedication to neighborhood-driven cultural engagement is as clear in its calendar as it is in its name. The cozy Eastside cafe becomes a beer and wine bar in the evenings, hosting weekly doodle nights, vinyl listening sessions, game nights, and a farm stand from nearby worker-owned co-op Patchwork Farm. Over simple sandwiches, veggie-based sides, and colorful smoothie bowls, take in local art at exhibitions, listen to music from Austin artists and vinyl DJs, or shop vintage clothes, secondhand books, and handmade goods at day-time markets. Speed dating nights, happy hour mixers, and other excuses to talk to your neighbors are aided by the spot's restricted laptop policy – clock out after 5pm and on weekends! – and its laid-back, naturally lit indoors and cheerful, plant-crowded covered patio. Though not a community garden in the traditional sense, this day-to-night meeting place is intentionally planting seeds of connection in Austin. – CAROLINE DREW

WHERE YOU GO: SAGEBRUSH

WHAT YOU DO: Two-step

WHAT YOU ORDER: Lone Star

ALSO TRY: An Old Austin evening down South at Sam's Town Point; dance lessons before a bustling night out at White Horse; longstanding residencies and local legends at Donn's Depot

Dust off those dancing boots and strut your way to two-step staple Sagebrush for lessons, workshops, and live practice opportunities aplenty. Unassuming from the street, this honky-tonk's tassel curtain-framed stage looms large in Austin's country scene, welcoming traveling acts and local players – like those that soundtrack their weekly beginner, intermediate, and advanced two-step lessons taught by Hill Country Two Step and Double or Nothing. If organized group swaying is more your style, step in tandem with Bronco: Queer Linedancing's workshop. Dancing is arguably the most tried and true method to meet and mingle; there's nothing quite like stepping on another's toes to make two people close. Beneath its high, exposed wood-beam ceiling, slung with simple chandeliers, Sagebrush and its dance instructors make the centuries-old pastime accessible and inclusive, and its dependable schedule means you have plenty of opportunities to get to know new dancing partners and polish your pretzel spin.

WHERE YOU GO:
SAHARA LOUNGE

WHAT YOU DO: Watch live music

WHAT YOU ORDER: Sahara Slant

ALSO TRY: Country-soundtracked Chicken Shit Bingo at the Little Longhorn Saloon; fiddler Warren Hood's residency at the ABGB; a kolache and a local songwriter at Batch

Like Madonna said, music makes the people come together. In Austin's increasingly monolithic, gentrified Eastside, the building at 1413 Weberville is a tenacious wellspring of diversity. Connection-seeking Austinites of all ages, races, and tax brackets turn out in droves to drink in the sounds of funk, disco, hip-hop, and other joyfully Black and Latin musical stylings on the sweaty, AC-less dance floor of the Sahara Lounge, home to third-Friday Ladies' Nights, quarterly Body Rock ATX dance parties, and – of course – Africa Night. Every Saturday, musician and French-trained cook Ibrahim Aminou offers attendees a free West African buffet and a curated musical lineup. Afro Jazz, the Point, and house band the Sahara Allstars are known to perform at the beloved residency, but the weekly shows are always headlined by Aminou and his 10-piece band Zoumountchi. Enthralled by global rhythms, inspired by improvisation and collaboration, and perhaps fueled by the Akpeteshie in the bar's signature Sahara Slant, returning visitors agree: An evening at the Sahara Lounge is perhaps the most life-giving night out that contemporary Austin has to offer.

- CARYS ANDERSON

WHERE YOU GO:
PINS MECHANICAL

WHAT YOU DO: Play arcade games

WHAT YOU ORDER: St. Elmo Carl Kolsch

ALSO TRY: Board games at Vigilante; disc golf and more at Austin Beerworks; Sprinkle Valley; board and hobby games at Emerald Tavern

There's your run-of-the-mill bar games like pool and darts, and there's arcades and bowling alleys – and then there's Pins Mechanical. Sprawling through the heart of the St. Elmo Arts District, blocks away from the local brewery's main taproom, the first Texas outpost of the Midwestern mini-chain has all the classics and then some. Duckpin bowling is one of the titular draws, a shrunk-down version of bowling that doesn't demand funky shoes or stuffing your fingers into a heavy ball. Beyond the mini lanes, Pins has enlarged other games: Patio Pong uses trash cans and dodge-balls in place of red Solo cups and ping-pong balls, and a seated one-v-one soccer game gives you all the satisfaction of scoring a goal without the running. If you're looking to discover a new semi-physical backyard game – or become a Skee-Ball champion (it's free!) – this is the place. Tucked in a quiet cove are the other kind of mechanical pins – pinball machines, that is – and when you tire of those, get cozy in their shaggy living room time capsule to play Sega Genesis games or wander the free arcade section, boasting all the classics – Donkey Kong, Pac-Man, Galaga – plus rare Eighties finds like BurgerTime, Paperboy, and Budweiser's Tapper.

IS WEED THE NEW BEER?

As alcohol consumption decreases, many turn to THC beverages

BY CAROLINE DREW

While bars and music venues and all kinds of places that have relied on a steady stream of bubbles scramble to stay afloat as alcohol consumption rates decline, a new can has entered the cooler: the THC drink. Texas weed beverage brands have been at the forefront, enjoying the boom of sober-curious culture. Their offerings have multiplied and diversified steadily as a consumer market sprouts up around alcohol alternatives. Yet suppliers see these beverages as more than a nonalcoholic offering, especially as customers grow comfortable with a new kind of drinking.

"We realized that people wanted a new way to consume. Alcohol intake was decreasing, but the marijuana intake was increasing," explains Restart co-founder Sydney Torabi. Torabi and her two sisters began Restart as a wellness-forward CBD and THC brand, focusing on high-quality ingredients and all-natural products. Restart already carried some high-dose THC "shots," but noticed that customers were looking for a substitute for a glass of beer or wine, so they formulated the Rita, a margarita-inspired canned THC cocktail.

"It [is] something that you can have more session-ably, socially with your friends, at home, that still gives you the fixation of holding a glass or a can, but without the hangover," Torabi explains. The Rita, like most canned THC drinks, comes in 5- and 10-milligram dosages. These figures are something edible consumers are accustomed to, but Torabi points out that, in a beverage, the body processes those doses differently. "If you think about a 10-milligram edible, you're consuming that entire 10 milligrams at once, you're digesting it and you peak a lot higher," she says. "Versus a beverage, if you're sipping on it, you're almost microdosing as you sip it and over the course of, let's say 15, 30, 45 minutes, you're intaking 1, 2, 3, 4 milligrams at a lot slower pace so the peak isn't as intense."

Describing the beverage's effects is sticky, yet imperative, to selling these new products. Weed is more and more legal all the time – even in a hotly contested state like Texas – but it's traditionally been seen as a psychoactive substance with different outcomes than alcohol, depending on dose, consumption method, and personal tolerance. Across these upstart brands, creators are honing terpene combinations and CBD/THC ratios to create a consistent, familiar buzz. The teams behind Tejas Tonic and Ease Up were already growing weed in Texas, and noticed the same trend away from alcohol and toward new cannabis consumption forms. Like the Torabis, they saw potential to create a healthier alternative that fits within the drinking framework folks are used to.

"It's the same feelings that alcohol gives you, but then you're not dealing with the hangover the next day. You're not dealing, always, with the caloric intake that alcohol comes with, the liver damage that comes with it, and so I think people are really finding value in THC beverages not just from a recreational, 'Oh-my-gosh-I'm-getting-high' standpoint, but from a health standpoint," says Tejas Tonic public relations head Cara Caulkins. All three of these cannabis concoction hawkers emphasize organic growing methods and natural ingredients, striving to reduce sugar and other additives commonly found in their alcohol-based competitors.

"I have so many friends that are going into the premenopausal mid-40s," says Caulkins. "They're loving our drink because all the sugar intake and the wine at the end of the day has just really crushed them the next day."

For many casual drinkers, THC beverages may be a way to still drink socially or unwind at home while bypassing the unfavorable elements of alcohol. Others approach these drinks as a lightly mind-altering, all-day beverage perhaps more akin to caffeine than a can of beer or glass of wine.

"You can kind of include us in any part of your day, whether that seems weird or not, but a 2-milligram [drink] at 1 or 2 in the afternoon – you can still go grocery shopping. You can still write a paper. You can still answer your emails," Caulkins says, referring to the brand's latest offering, a 2-milligram drink, Orange Sunshine. With a laugh, she adds: "I'm actually living proof of this."

At Ease Up, they make the argument that their drinks are more than just better for you than alcohol, they're actually good for you. The Dallas-based company's co-founder Richard Velasquez explains that their 10-milligram cans contain a 1:1 mixture of THC, CBD, and CBN, an oxidized cannabinoid associated with relaxation and sleepiness. The 30 total milligrams, he states, can be good for mental focus, combat anxiety and depression, reduce physical inflammation, and improve gut health. Velasquez imagines Ease Up becoming akin to a Gatorade or Red Bull – something you reach for in specific moments beyond nighttime socializing.

"It's just a mood booster, where some people drink it and they feel the focus for a minute and they're able to lock in a little bit better while they're sitting there at their desk working. I have friends who consume it right after a bike ride," Velasquez says.

While cannabis has been cultivated and consumed for centuries, and many contemporary studies tout its medicinal benefits, medical professionals are quick to point out that cannabis interacts with many different systems in the body and can respond to underlying mental and physical conditions differently from person to person. As marijuana is further legalized and subsequently studied, we'll likely know more about how different consumption forms impact our organs.

Another area of study that has blossomed in the age of legalization is terpenes, the hydrocarbon compounds found in weed that give it both its varying aromas and varying effects. Breeding plants with different genetic makeups encourages the presence, or absence, of different terpenes, leading to different psychoactive effects – like those most easily differentiated in sativa and indica strains – and to different flavor profiles. Tejas Tonic, under the guidance of founder and "genetics savant" Aaron Owens, leans into these terpenes, growing specific strains to create drinks flavored by the previously existing taste of the weed, paired with natural fruit and herb flavorings.

"You can taste the hemp in there," Caulkins says. "We don't shy away from that."

Meanwhile, Ease Up's blueberry hibiscus and watermelon lime might fit in more with the acidic carbonated sweetness of alcoholic seltzers, and Restart's Rita is, obviously, modeled after a margarita.

"It really just came from not trying to mimic alcohol flavors, but trying to familiarize the customer," Torabi explains. However, looking ahead, she guesses more alcohol-mimicking is on the menu for THC beverages.

"I'm starting to see testing in the market for dupes on Fireball, for dupes on whiskey in general, for bourbon, for tequila," Torabi says, pointing out that many people switching from alcohol to cannabis drinks still want the astringent taste of liquor. "We're currently working on a new flavor that's a dupe on the classic cinnamon-flavor whiskey that'll be coming out soon," she shares. "I think just my bottom line is, obviously, staying canna-curious."

THE BEST MATCHA IN AUSTIN

These local cafes make the historical tea right

BY GIANNA IVY

Matcha, the vibrant green tea powder, seems to be everywhere these days. It is swirled into lattes, sprinkled over desserts, and even shaken into cocktails. Despite its trendiness, matcha has a history and tradition that stretches back more than a thousand years.

The origins of matcha trace back to China's Tang dynasty, when tea leaves were first steamed, pressed, and ground into bricks for transport. By the 12th century, monks brought the practice of powdered tea to Japan, where it evolved into a ritual deeply tied to meditation and mindfulness. During the 15th and 16th centuries, matcha became central to Japanese tea ceremonies, valued for its connection to simplicity, presence, and harmony.

Producing matcha is a meticulous process. The tea plants are carefully shaded for several weeks before harvest. Only the youngest leaves are picked, steamed to preserve their color, and stone-ground into a fine powder. Because of this labor-intensive process, matcha was historically reserved for the elite.

In the 21st century, however, matcha made its way into global cafes and kitchens. Today, its appeal goes beyond taste. Matcha is known for its natural caffeine, rich antioxidants, and calming amino acid L-theanine, which together create a smooth, focused energy.

WHAT MAKES GOOD MATCHA?

Not all matchas are created equal. High-quality matcha should be ceremonial grade, sourced from Japan, and a bright, grassy green. The flavor should strike a balance: naturally sweet and slightly earthy, without bitterness. When prepared well, the drink is creamy and smooth, never chalky.

Austin, with its thriving cafe culture, has no shortage of matcha options. A few spots, however, stand out for their attention to quality, sourcing, and preparation. Here are three of our favorites.

LAU LAU

Hannah Voy, the Chinese American owner of UT-adjacent cafe Lau Lau, takes pride in sharing Asian culture through every cup of coffee and tea. Lau Lau's matcha is ceremonial grade and sourced from Central Matcha, a supplier that works directly with farmers in Kagoshima, Japan, one of the country's most renowned tea regions.

The matcha latte here is all about balance. The baristas whisk the powder into a smooth paste before blending it with milk and ice, creating a rich, velvety drink. The flavor is bright, grassy, and slightly sweet, with just the right amount of creaminess to make it refreshing without being heavy. Lau Lau's approach highlights the cultural heritage of matcha for customers.

DESNUDO COFFEE

Desnudo started as a coffee cart and now boasts three Austin locations, but its popularity isn't just about espresso. Their matcha program has earned its own loyal following. Desnudo uses ceremonial-grade matcha from Uji, Japan, a region considered the birthplace of Japanese green tea cultivation.

Each drink is whisked to order, ensuring the drink is made to perfection. The result is a vibrant cup with an earthy backbone, lifted by a natural sweetness that lingers without bitterness. The cafe emphasizes craft and care – no shortcuts, just precision and respect for the process.

CÀPHÊ.IN COFFEE

CàPhê.in brings a playful twist to Austin's matcha scene. Known for their creative seasonal menus, the cafe pairs the richness of ceremonial-grade Kagoshima matcha with rotating flavors. This summer, a strawberry matcha latte blended fresh berries with natural tea notes. This fall, a banana matcha stole the spotlight, with mellow fruit rounding out the drink's natural sweetness.

What sets CàPhê.in apart is experimentation. Each drink is carefully measured to keep the ratios of matcha, milk, and flavoring in balance, ensuring the tea remains the star. The result is a menu that respects tradition while reimagining what a matcha drink can be.

BEER IS THE NEW FRONTIER FOR AUSTIN FOOD PAIRINGS

Local taprooms craft brews with specific menus in mind BY TAYLOR TOBIN

With a few notable exceptions – like sake at a sushi omakase or mezcal at a high-end Mexican restaurant – food and alcohol pairings usually center around wine. Wine-food partnerships like Cabernet Sauvignon & steak and Champagne & oysters are common knowledge among regular diners and are known for highlighting the unique flavors and dynamics of both elements. But in a city as beer-centric as Austin, wouldn't it make more sense for restaurants to home in on food pairings that involve local craft brews?

Will Jaquiss, founder and brewmaster of Meanwhile Brewing, sees some real merit to this idea, if for no other reason than because "Pairing beer with food is fun!"

"Beer is very versatile and forgiving

(more so than wine even), so [you] don't need to worry about nailing it perfectly," he explains via email. "Lots of different styles of beer can pair with any particular dish."

Luckily, a number of elite indie breweries in Austin prioritize food friendliness when designing their signature beer styles and seasonal releases. "All of our beers take into account our food menu, our atmosphere, and the two weather seasons we have here in Austin," explains Taylor Ziebarth, founder of Oddwood Brewing. "We skew every beer to be lighter on the malt notes [with a] lighter mouthfeel, higher on the carbonation levels, [with] above-average bitterness levels, and a touch on the acidic side to help stand up to our flavorful pizzas and Austin's endless summer. Crispy pizzas and crispy beers!"

Creating beers that pair successfully with specific food (and finding dishes that pair well with a brewery's existing beer repertoire) requires brewers to "understand the intention behind the food," says Patrick Clark, co-founder at Zilker Brewing. "How do the makers want people to experience it? From there, you can look at the ingredients they're using for inspiration and see how subtle touches might be added to a beer to create a connection. Start small with any new flavors or adjuncts so the food stays in the spotlight and the beer complements it."

Another approach, according to Clark, is "to really dive into the fundamentals of flavor – sweet, sour, salty, bitter, and umami – and figure out how to express those through beer. That takes time, but it's worth it."

Many of the best beer-food pairings in Austin happen as a result of collaborations between brewers and chefs. When Clark's team at Zilker gets involved with a project like this, "We like to sit down with our partners, get a real sense of what they're going for with their food, and then build a beer that [complements] it instead of competing with it. Whenever we can, we'll pull inspiration from the ingredients they use – but in a subtle, nuanced way."

One of the most famous real-life examples of what Clark describes can be found in Zilker Icy Boys, a Japanese-style rice lager developed with the Spicy Boys Fried Chicken truck (one of which can be found at Zilker's East Sixth taproom). Clark says that, when it comes to building a flavor profile for Icy Boys, "Our goal was pretty simple — we wanted a beer that could cool off the heat from Spicy Boys' bold flavors and spices. A palate cleanser or 'cooler,' if you will." The process of working with Spicy Boys included "brewing several test batches, sampling them together, and talking through what we were aiming for until we landed on the right balance." The end result of this team experience is "a clean, simple lager made with high-quality ingredients" that has become as iconic in Austin as the piquant chicken sandwiches and nuggets that inspired the brew.

Another brewery that's tight with the Spicy Boys truck — St. Elmo Brewing — also takes pride in its beers created to pair with certain dishes. "With pairings, the classic question is whether you want the beverage to [complement] or contrast with the food," says founder Bryan Winslow. "Well-made light beer, like [St. Elmo] Carl, is an easy go-to, as it pairs with a ton of different types of food. Beers like stouts, porter, or barleywine tend to be sweet and pair very well with an array of desserts."

A notable recent collaboration for St. Elmo featured LeRoy and Lewis Barbecue and a new beer called Smoke on the Lager, which Winslow describes as "a lightly-smoked amber lager."

"It's toasty, slightly smoky, and has a touch of dark fruit on top of a dry finish. It is perfect when drunk in their restaurant with a plate full of beef cheek and sausage," he says. This experience with LeRoy and Lewis "reminded me of how seriously fun our work can be. The beer and food we made together was created with all of the intention, care and focus imaginable. Yet simultaneously, it is created in the most fun environment with the kindest people around."

Linking up with outside restaurants or a food truck parked outside lets brewers flex their creative muscles, but working with an in-house kitchen can lead to a longer-lasting focus on how craft beers and dishes interact with each other. Oddwood Brewing gets to experience the best of both worlds; with the KG BBQ trailer parked out front, "We have had several collaboration beers focusing on the flavors of pomegranate," Ziebarth says. "We've gone down the road of brewing a pomegranate-laden sour beer and also working up several beer cocktails to pair with [KG BBQ's] menu. We feel the lighter, food-friendly nature of our beer [plays] nicely with their menu." But the brewery also gets to try new mix-and-match strategies with its own pizza-focused house menu. For instance, "A few years ago, we changed our pepperoni brand to a spicy, cupping pepperoni. The spicy, crunchy texture of the pie mates perfectly with our house German pilsner. The spicy, floral, lemony German hops and the dry bitter finish really help cut the pepperoni and mozzarella oils. It's a personal favorite [pairing] of mine," Ziebarth tells us.

Pinthouse Brewing, famous for its own pizza operation along with its award-winning beers, never overlooks the importance of keeping its dish profiles harmonious with its delicate pilsners and punchy IPAs. "The styles we love to brew naturally pair with the dishes coming out of our kitchen," says Jacob Passey, VP of brewing at Pinthouse Brewing. "The bitterness of hoppiest beers like Jellyfish or Scorpion Disco cuts through the spice of our top-selling pies, while lighter brews like Magical Pils or Burro's Breakfast make the perfect sidecar for salads and sandwiches. We focus on approachable, sessionable styles that keep people coming back for another pint, which makes them even more food-friendly."

Ultimately, all of the brewers believe that beer pairings in Austin deserve all of the credit given to wine pairings... and honestly, they may deserve even more. In the words of Will Jaquiss, "We've got one of the best food and beer cities in the country, and Austin is lucky to be filled with food- and beer-literate folks. As a result, I think we can do more storytelling, rather than educating, when presenting our food pairings. That's just more fun."

"These collaborative relationships taught me that there is a lot of mutual respect and trust between the hospitality scene and brewing scene," Jaquiss continues. "We all get to be a little more experimental as a result."

Having built vibrant open mic Mondays in the VORTEX's Butterfly Garden, every.Word Poetry now expands that spirit to a piece of art. This is part poetry, part performance: a "choreo-poem" of movement and moments exploring reflection and rituals. Assisted by live music from Boooka and Tiffany Rose, plus the poets Ms. Trin-I-Tee, Nala Washington, and the Blacksmith, writer/performer Michael Hatcher weaves a way through the thorny paths of mortality. It's not just about yelling at the void. It's about exploring the facets of existence.

VISUAL ARTS

THURSDAY 23, UNCHAINED.ART

This joint exhibition between textile artist Ditte Sørensen and painter Via Boley doubles as an introduction to fine art gallery Unchained.Art's new home. Moving from East Cesar Chavez to 311 W. Seventh, the gallery finds itself in a historic 1926 Beaux-Arts landmark in the heart of Downtown. Get acquainted with the space while you drink in Sørensen's sewn pieces – bright blends of figurative and abstract stylings, inspired by cultural landmarks ranging from Bowie and Zeppelin to Gustav Klimt – and Boley's moody, reflective vinyl paintings. The exhibition runs until December 13.

THURSDAY 23, HOTEL VEGAS

1995 was a great year to be a teenager – at least, that's what I've been telling myself since my days as a rueful adolescent in the 2010s. The source of my inexplicable longing for times past was, largely, Clueless and Empire Records, two coming-of-age rom-coms that piled on all the alternative rock and plaid skirts an old-soul girl could dream of. Members of local acts Hex Boyfriend, Tied Up, Lola Tried, Drip Fed, Subpar Snatch, and more share my nostalgia by performing songs from each soundtrack this week at Vegas. VISUAL ARTS QUEER

THURSDAY 23, MCLENNON PEN CO. GALLERY

Lindsey Lascaux's latest exhibit puts pictures to the universal feeling in the air: Yes, "I'm Having a Panic Attack." Her paintings and sculptures evoke the tension between all-encompassing darkness and the elusive dream of hope. It's a two-pronged visual approach. Some works are torrential scenes elevated by Disney-fied elements bringing sunshine and rainbows into a stormy sphere. Others show idyllic images subtly marred with distressing details on the peripherals. All speak to how we cope with constant, crushing stress. Before 28 Years Later's zombie schlong and the retconning of 28 Weeks Later's ending, there was Danny Boyle and Alex Garland's spare, still devastating series starter. Adopting the perspective of a bicycle courier (Cillian Murphy) who wakes from a coma to discover a lab-born "rage virus" has run rampant, the film starts after the world has more or less already ended. Famous for having its zombie stand-ins, the infected, drop the shambling act of its cinematic forebears and move terrifyingly fast, 28 Days Later looks as cruddy as you might expect for a low-budget film shot on digital video in 2000, but it works to the film's advantage. It's also been hard to find on streaming – so don't miss this rare chance to see it on the big screen.

DAY TRIPS

BY GERALD E. MCLEOD

GERALD E. MCLEOD

Enchanted Rock State Natural Area outside of Fredericksburg nearly tripled in size with the purchase in January 2025 of 3,073 acres on the northern edge of the park.

The section is in addition to a 630-acre tract adjacent to the south side of the natural area purchased in September 2024. The latest addition is a former cattle, exotic animal, and hunting ranch.

Funding for the purchases came primarily from the Centennial Parks Conservation Fund approved by voters in 2023.

If previous park acquisitions are a guide, it will be years before the public is allowed unfettered access to the additions. Currently the only way to visit the new sections is on a once-a-month guided tour with the park's Interpretive Ranger.

The 1.6-mile ranger-led hike follows an old pipeline road to a small lake built by the previous owner.

The first thing you notice about the north section is the thick layer of grass. Lush and about knee-high, the green carpet looks like a cattleman's dream. Surrounding the meadows are trees of all sizes and descriptions casting welcoming shade.

The healthy ecosystem of the section is testament to good land management before it was added to the state inventory of special places.

Everywhere you look there are outcroppings of the famous pink granite. Some of the rock formations look smooth and rounded. Other formations are large boulders placed haphazardly as splashes of color on a field of green.

One of the state's most popular parks, Enchanted Rock attracts 250,000 visitors a year to hike the 460-foot granite dome. Popular with rock climbers, the park is a state natural area with limited amenities. What TPWD decides to offer on the expanded property is to be decided.

Enchanted Rock State Natural Area is about 18 miles north of Fredericksburg. Hikes to the north section are scheduled for November 20 and December 18.

Old No. 1 at 50: Celebrating the Spirit of Guy Clark

MUSIC

FRIDAY 24, THE 04 CENTER

By the time Guy Clark released his debut album, Old No. 1, in 1975, his reputation as a songwriter was already well established thanks to popular covers of his songs, including "L.A. Freeway," "Desperados Waiting for a Train," and "Texas 1947." And although the late Texan never achieved the notoriety of his outlaw contemporaries, Old No. 1 remains one of country music's most influential LPs. For its 50th anniversary, Clark's longtime creative partner Verlon Thompson gathers acolytes to fete the seminal album, with Sam Baker, Rosie Flores, Waylon Payne, Jack Barksdale, Graham Weber, Bukka Allen, and more. — DOUG FREEMAN

B Scene: Frills & Thrills: Tele Novella + Dorio

MUSIC

FRIDAY 24, THE BLANTON MUSEUM OF ART

Baroque-themed night at the art museum, Blanton B Scene: Frills and Thrills, requires a scintillating soundtrack, and local duos Tele Novella and Dorio are the perfect accompaniments for such a lavish evening. Tele Novella's opulent folk-pop arrangements are adorned with pearlescent melodies, made to sparkle by Natalie Ribbons' mystically lilting, Fifties-inspired vocals. Their sound transcends era, genre, and their stripped-down stage presence like a magic trick. The future-nostalgic jukebox twinkle of Dorio's layered indie-pop sound toys with twilight tones and telekinetic cohesion, tickling your eardrums and your dancing feet. — CAROLINE DREW

Die Spitz

MUSIC

FRIDAY 24, STUBB'S

About a year and a half after their rowdy 2023 EP Teeth turned homegrown alt rockers Die Spitz into certified road dogs, the chaos-loving twenty-somethings return from tour with their debut full-length in tow. With renowned pop-punk producer Will Yip behind the boards, September's Something to Consume – released on Jack White's Third Man Records – maintains the quartet's boisterous braggadocio, but also expands the instrument-hoppers' sonic and lyrical terrain with newfound maturity. Hardcore killers Fuck Money and apocalyptic post-punk collective the Opera open this homecoming at one of Austin's most iconic venues. — CARYS ANDERSON

Party Like It's 1999 Y2K Party & Independence Brewing 21st Anniversary Party

COMMUNITY

FRIDAY 24 &amp; SATURDAY 25, INDEPENDENCE BREWING COMPANY

Independence Brewing celebrates its 21st anniversary this weekend with back-to-back bashes targeting slightly different demos. Kicking things off is Friday night's Y2K-themed party, boasting spinnage from DJ Ed West and prizes for best costume and best Britney/boy band dances. Meanwhile Saturday night's anniversary party continues the throwback vibes with an Office Space printer smash (bring your own old office equipment to recycle and enter a raffle to rough up their provided printer), Weezer spins, and a trick contest and open skate on a mini ramp. Soak up the delicious beers with on-site food truck Cockti Juicy Fried Chicken. — KIMBERLEY JONES

Austin Record Convention

MUSIC COMMUNITY

FRIDAY 24 - SUNDAY 26,
PALMER EVENTS CENTER

Levitation's rebirth last month at Palmer Events Center locksteps with May's Austin Record Convention, which turned the same two ballrooms into an Armadillo WHQ-like room with the stage up front. ARC performer S.L. Houser then christened the BMI stage at this ACL Fest. No stage this go-round at the semi-annual record swap and pop culture lodestone, a 1980s-born music scene pillar alongside the likes of Waterloo, SXSW, and this paper, but either festival can return the favor by booking showrunner Nathan Hanners' group the Long Lost Locals, who ply veteran, pedal steel-kissed Austincana ("The Haunted Ones"). Show founder Doug Hanners raised that Austin right. Saturday/Sunday, $5, early shopping Friday, $30.

No Idea Festival MUSIC

FRIDAY 24 - SUNDAY 26,
VARIOUS LOCATIONS

No Idea at 22 hasn't aged a bit – it's still the handsome celebration of freely improvised and conceptual avant-garde sounds it's always been. This year's festival centers around two titans of jazz on the edge, and a young lion soon to join them. Poet/cultural theorist Fred Moten, saxophonist Joe McPhee, and bassist Brandon López lay down some soulful experimentalism in various combinations at Alienated Majesty Books and the Scottish Rite Theater. Saxophonist Michael Foster, singer Christina Carter, bassist Juan Garcia, electronicist Richard Kamerman, bassist Bhab Rainey, and guitarist/bagpiper David Watson's Ensemble also perform at the bookstore, theatre, and/or house concerts.

- MICHAEL TOLAND

Nosferatu the Vampyre FILM

FRIDAY 24 - SUNDAY 26 & THURSDAY 30,
AFS CINEMA

Last year's gothic blockbuster was Robert Eggers' Christmas-release chomp at the Count Orlok apple. But in 1979, Werner Herzog made the definitive adaptation of silent film's most fearsome creature – a slow and visually arresting feature that freshens rather than remakes the original Twenties picture. Here, Klaus Kinski's count haunts the screen as, in Herzog's words, "not a monster, but an ambivalent, masterful force of change" while Possession's Isabelle Adjani plays terror with a subtle sexual edge. Perhaps the modern crowd loves to see the vampyr's penis, but Herzog locks all in from the first minute of real mummy footage.

Viva La Vida Festival & Parade

LEARNING

SATURDAY 25, DOWNTOWN AUSTIN

The deep yellow and orange tones of the marigold flower are ever-present in Mexican altars and processions, helping honor deceased relatives in a celebration of life and memory. Mexic-Arte returns with its annual festival and parade for Día de los Muertos, this year highlighting the symbolism and importance of flowers to create a living tribute for the departed. Catch the grand procession at noon and stay for art, traditional foods, and performance.

Gary Numan MUSIC

SATURDAY 25,
EMPIRE CONTROL ROOM & GARAGE

How many artists have inspired both Nine Inch Nails and Afrika Bambaataa to cover their work? From the Tubeway Army days into his prolific, ongoing solo career, Gary Numan was the first of his kind, an android who mutated guitar-bass-drums-led New Wave with sci-fi sounding synths and inspired an entire generation of electronic artists in his wake. "Down in the Park" still sounds like a dispatch from space, "Metal" still grooves with that insistent, layered riff, "M.E." still squalls like a buzzsaw, and "Cars" – of course – remains an indelible synth-pop masterpiece. Choppy hair, racoon eyes, and signature chirp intact, the man from another place continues to translate futures past onstage.

Boook Bash & Tattoo Flash BOOKS COMMUNITY

SUNDAY 26, BOOKPEOPLE

Tattoos at the bookshop might sound scary, but the ink'll be totally appropriate for this Halloween bash. BookPeople slashes 20% off the horror section and serves themed cafe drinks to pair at this haunted happening, where Cherry Pop Ink sets up for flash tats at 11am. Make sure to get there early as it is first come, first served. Designs are TBA, but think cutesy ghosts and maybe a few horror references. Come out and meet other badass bookworms.

The Living Dead Girl

FILM QUEER

SUNDAY 26, WE LUV VIDEO

Pre-Rob Zombie song and pre-doll collection that used to scare me in Hot Topic, this title belonged to a French horror flick from director Jean Rollin. Known best for his erotic horror highlights The Nude Vampire and The Shiver of the Vampires, this later work falls into the same category many B-movies inhabit – the not-vampire vampire movie. A toxic waste spill may be what resurrects lead character Catherine, but her lust for human blood echoes those fanged monsters featured before by Rollins. As for why this is on WLV's SunGay schedule, well. Wouldn't you know it but this reanimated ma'am's a sapphic bloodsucker, whose morbid hunger extends to the love of her childhood friend Hélène.

More Than Pink Walk SPORTS COMMUNITY

SUNDAY 26, BARTON CREEK SQUARE

Bringing in more than cute pink athleisure and a goal of $525K in donations, the Susan G. Komen organization's walk enables continued breast cancer research and advocacy. The event celebrates survivors and people currently impacted by metastatic breast cancer, connecting them with one another, and inviting everyone to walk around the square while raising money for the organization's patient support resources. Once the rosy river of walkers settles, there will be snacks and music to enjoy.

Many words have been shared throughout the online- and meat-space about queer venues in Austin over the past, oh, million years. (This is how long Austin has had LGBTQ-centric places, yes?) And while I'm sure everyone – aka no one – is salivating for this print-media employee's thoughts, I really don't care to share 'em in ink. However, I will point out that there's a LOT of queer-owned and -friendly spots around Bat City that don't always show up on the brand-name web-search for "Gay Hot Spots in Austin." To be quite honest, any place you find that provides a sense of queer community is a special one, whether that's a nightlife nook, literary hub, cinema space, or otherwise. Several of them might even show up in this week's listings! So let's log off for a little while and enjoy each other's company in various places and spaces. See ya out there, babes.

Fantasy Femme Fest

Fri., Oct. 24, Tiny Minotaur Tavern

Hear ye, hear ye: All sapphics have been summoned by the High Council of Lavender Lesbians to join them at this soiree among the fae. Dress as fantastic as you please and come ready for tarot, flower crowns, vendors, drink specials, burlesque, wishing wells and more.

Carabiner Club: Jennifer's Body

Thu., Oct. 23 & Mon., Oct. 27, Hyperreal Film Club

Set your sapphic sights on a scare for this month's Carabiner Club screening of Karyn Kusama (director of the best episode of Amazon's Dead Ringers show) and Diablo Cody's (innovator of the phrase "Oh my blog!") 2009 teen horror. Also on deck: drink specials, a costume contest judged by drag star Karabiner, and post-movie music spun by DJ Kshal.

Glamp Glamp – Icons: Dead or Alive

Thu., Oct. 23, Lynny's

If you haven't taken your turn at "Austin's only Queer Experimental Performance Art Open Mic Night" yet, tonight might be your time! This month's theme is tributes to your fave icons, whether they're here or in heaven (or hell, I suppose). OUTsider Fest hosts a pre-show happy hour during the 6pm sign-up time.

Boobye Party/Halloween Bash

Fri., Oct. 24, Secret Location

OutWellness throws a ta-ta to titties that's welcome to everyone who's gotten top surgery, wants it, or has supported someone through their journey. Expect fun games, a body-adornment station, and Halloween vibes. Shirts are optional, so come show off that chest! RSVP for location.

Bastrop Pride Presents Halloween HoeDown

Fri., Oct. 24, Lightnin' Bar

Get your fill of frights out in Bastrop with this seasonal shindig hosted by Elgin's Aria Forte and featuring performances by Stellar Manx, Eva Inez, Miss Kitty Litter ATX, Petty Cakes, Yvonne F. Mei, and Holliday Cash.

Classic Whorror

Fri., Oct. 24, Cheer Up Charlies

Glaze mag presents a murderers' row of music, spins, and burlesque for the second edition of their Halloween happening. This year's their Villain Era, so dress up in your most evil duds to stun and, perhaps, slay.

Aura After Dark: Queer Vampire Rave

Sat., Oct. 25, TOATS ATX

Sapphic social club Aura brings a fang-tastic vibe to their Halloween party, with spins by DJs Amarji King, Dragonneen, Orya, and Kuntress accompanying cocktails, flash tattoos, vendors, and more – hosted by the one and only Xoy.

The 3rd Annual Birthday Roast of Jose Da'Hype

Sat., Oct. 25, ColdTowne Theater

He's back and just as bitingly funny as ever, so celebrate Jose Da'Hype's b-day in the traditional style: watching him get comedically shredded by killer local comics such as Mattie Yapp, Priya Blunts, Gabe Davis, Lisa Smith, Reese Davis, Genevieve Clinton, and Holden. Niki Coleman hosts, with a pre-show outside the venue hosted by Rochelle McConico.

Drag Me to the Tavern: OOPS! All TRTs

Sat., Oct. 25, Tiny Minotaur Tavern

Celebrate the style, the spirit, and the spice of co-host Sir TRT at this show totally themed to the TRT brand/lifestyle. Come for the many mutations of the signature TRT mustache; stay to donate all your pocket change – and door cover – to fellow knight Sir Beau Elliot's top surgery fund.

One Dab One Direction Drag Brunch

Sun., Oct. 26, The Glassmith

Whether you're there for the dab + bud bar or the 1D midnight memories, this drag show featuring Sir Dree, Sir Maxim, Gemma Nye, and hosts Slaylem Cholula Cuntress and Larry Stylinson is sure to leave you with "Stockholm Syndrome." (Look, it's one of my favorite songs, okay!) Plus, a Liam Payne ofrenda.

Drag Me to the Candy

Sun., Oct. 26, Ani's Day & Night

What a sweet show this'll be, with drag hosted by the Lezzz B. Honest crew, a Local Queer ATX trunk-or-treat, tote-bag painting, a costume contest for peeps and pets, and much more. Plus, all those delicious drinks and noshables from Ani's kitchen and food truck friends.

The Glitoris Presents: Swalloween

Tue., Oct. 28, Swan Dive, Barbarella

TuezGayz gets creepy, crawly, and c*nty for their 15th anniversary of this seasonal costume party featuring all your favorites like Diamond Dior Davenport's Drag Dive as well as signature Glitoris spins all night.

The Rocky Horror Drag Show

Wed., Oct. 29, Hotel Vegas, Volstead Lounge

Dammit, Janet! That's what you'll be saying to your friend Janet if she didn't snag a ticket to the Vixens of Volstead & Friends' drag shadow cast performance of the classic Tim Curry horror comedy. But don't worry, Jan: There's two performances (7 & 10pm), so that's double the chances to correct your mistake.

Boyz of Austin 10th Anniversary Spooktacular

Wed., Oct. 29, Elysium

Get your start on the Halloweekend with a scary drag show a decade in the making! The Boyz celebrate 10 years of gender-diverse drag performances plus many more to come, and you're invited to monster-mash with 'em.

OUTsider Monster Bash

Thu., Oct. 30, The Museum of Human Achievement

Transmedia fest OUTsider throws a frightful fund-raiser on Halloween Eve featuring performances by fest faves like San Cha, a costume contest, a silent auction, and much more. B. Nassty hosts.

Queen of the Night

Thu., Oct. 30, Oilcan's

Ritzy Bitz brings a new competition series to Fourth that highlights all the different drag styles around Austin. Who will be the King/Queen of the Night? Come see who excels at this week's theme, which is punk, alt., and horror. Winner walks away with $300.

Workout! With Erica Nix

Thursdays, 8am, Double Trouble

Austin's favorite fitness queen pumps up the North Loop crowd every Thursday with an hourlong class that includes a free coffee in your $15 ticket purchase.

The Lost Boys FILM QUEER

SUNDAY 26 - WEDNESDAY 29,
ALAMO VILLAGE & LAKELINE

A perfect time capsule of Eighties vibes that not only highlights the omnipresence of sax solos but also puts forth the visual concept of hot twink Beetlejuice in young Kiefer Sutherland as dangerous vamp gay-ning leader David: This is Joel Schumacher's masterpiece. (Do NOT argue with me, Phantom phans!) By contrasting the gothic legacy of vampires with the beaches of California, the film's tale of finding family & belonging boosts its cheesier scenes to pure camp class. Plus, there's the queer subtext to consider – and trust, we're all considering that very, very hard. Screens at Alamo as part of the non-Highball-set Queer Film Theory 101 series.

The Used MUSIC

SUNDAY 26 & TUESDAY 28 - WEDNESDAY 29, EMO'S

Salt Lake's post-hardcore survivors toast 25 years with a three-night bloodletting, performing a different album each night: their self-titled debut (Sunday), In Love and Death (Tuesday), and Lies for the Liars (Wednesday). Expect mascara-streaked nostalgia and throat-ripping catharsis: "The Taste of Ink," "All That I've Got," "Pretty Handsome Awkward." Local openers rotate nightly, like scars from different eras: Her Leather Jacket, Myka Relocate, Notions. All shows 7pm. Emo's might still be standing after, but don't count on your voice.

The Bride of Frankenstein FILM

MONDAY 27, ALAMO MUELLER

A shock of white through a black bouffant is iconic enough as a hairstyle to overshadow its owner's slight screentime despite her being the title character. Sequel to the original Franky feature, director James Whale returns to the windmill laboratory with his sillier instincts awakened. From an opening scene that has Mary Shelley basically say "And also" to her original story to the big bolt-headed monster sharing a stogie with a blind man, Bride is a romp – which doesn't take away from its devastating ending. Such is the Whale way: Make you laugh the whole runtime before gut-punching you outta the cinema.

Elevated Block Party: Masquerade THEATRE

MONDAY 27, GROUND FLOOR THEATRE

Figures the theatrical folks of Ground Floor couldn't just throw a run-of-the-mill money-raising party. Instead, they're going above and beyond with this elevated block party themed to the mysterious and magical of a masquerade. Attendees will be whisked away into a night featuring performances from upcoming shows like Parade, interactive art installations, raffles, and a full buffet by Esther's Tex Mex. Plus much more, all of which comes due to your donation to this important artistic organization that promotes diverse voices and stories in Austin's theatre scene.

Get Crafty: Haunted Bird Houses COMMUNITY

MONDAY 27, ST. JOHN BRANCH LIBRARY

Sure, birds can build their own nests, but do they have the wherewithal to craft their own haunted houses? Not these bird-brains. So give them a helping hand at a free activity afternoon for kids 9-12. All supplies and instruction are provided by the kind folks of the Austin Public Library, along with festive drinks and spooky music. Just bring a creative spirit and ideas for how to make a scary shelter for our feathered friends.

Nouvelle Vague FILM

MONDAY 27, AFS CINEMA

One of the great privileges of having a cinema built by a hometown hero is that whenever he drops a new film, Austin gets the perks of a Hollywood or New York film audience. At this screening of Richard Linklater's new French New Wave tribute, the cast will be in attendance, and Austin gets to eat first before it opens in theatres everywhere on Halloween. Linklater borrows the style of Jean-Luc Godard to tell the story of his making Breathless, casting Zoey Deutch as Jean Seberg. François Truffaut, Eric Rohmer, and a host of other Film 101 big names are lovingly portrayed in this true "love letter to cinema." Tix to the in-person Q&A have sold out, but you can still secure a spot in theatre two where the Q&A will be livestreamed.

Boris MUSIC

TUESDAY 28, MOHAWK

Japanese noise/sludge/drone/metal legends Boris – drummer Atsuo, guitarist/bassist Takeshi, and guitarist/keyboardist Wata – have released dozens of projects, including 20 studio albums. However, it would be their 10th full-length, 2005's Pink, that would achieve worldwide critical acclaim. Easily their most accessible project, it feels like the immediate fallout of a new weapon from an alien, dense in an atmospheric doom haze. "Just Abandoned Myself," the monstrous 10-minute closer, is so packed it fills nearly half the length. A perfect opener in Agriculture comes with what they call "ecstatic black metal," punctuating their unusual vibrant release, The Spiritual Sound.

THE VERDE REPORT

BY ERIC GOODMAN

Owen Wolff scores the lone goal of a 1-0 win for Austin FC against LAFC at Q2 Stadium on Oct. 12

Austin FC Faces Tall Task in Playoff Series vs. LAFC

The world of soccer is a world of Davids and Goliaths, where mega-clubs like Real Madrid and FC Barcelona coexist among the likes of Elche and Girona. In our American sports ecosystem, though, that kind of unbalance would never be tolerated – or so the decision-makers at Major League Soccer would have us believe.

They'd also have us believe that all clubs in MLS, even today, are on equal competitive footing, with similar resources and similar regulations with which to work. If that ever was reality, it certainly isn't any longer. Take one glance at the payrolls of all 30 and you'll notice that two have clearly separated themselves in terms of their ability to attract – and, more importantly, pay – top-level talent.

On the East Coast, you have Inter Miami CF, leading the league in salary spend at $35 million, per Capology, anchored of course by Lionel Messi. On the West Coast, LAFC comes in at just under $28 million, thanks largely to the midseason signing of South Korean great Son Heung-min. No other club has a payroll north of $20 million.

So has that spending discrepancy resulted in MLS's own pair of Goliaths? Well, actually, no. At least, not based on how the regular season shook out. Both Inter Miami and LAFC finished a healthy – but far from dominant – third in their respective conferences.

And it's for that reason that Austin FC, despite finishing a respectable sixth place in the West, has LAFC to grapple with in the first round of the 2025 MLS Cup Playoffs.

On paper, the Verde and Black are massive underdogs to advance out of the best-of-three series, which begins with Game 1 Wednesday night in Los Angeles. PlayoffStatus.com gives ATXFC just a 17% chance to get through to Round 2, lowest of any club that avoided the 8 vs. 9 play-in game.

On the other hand, Austin FC was the rare club to beat LAFC twice in the regular season, doing so with a pair of scrappy 1-0 victories and holding the Angelenos to a combined four shots on target.

"We're going to have to look back at the games when we played them and see what worked and what didn't work," ATX star Owen Wolff said.

However, when Wolff and his teammates watch back the tape of their two victories, they won't see the effervescent Son – who earns in salary by himself about as much as the entire ATX roster combined – as he was not present for either match. In the 10 matches Son has featured for LAFC, he's scored nine goals.

It's clear what Austin's best course of action entails: Trust in the defensive organization that head coach Nico Estévez brought to the club, trust in your all-star goalkeeper Brad Stuver, and dig in defensively to repel Son, Golden Boot runner-up Denis Bouanga, and the rest of LAFC's dynamite attack like your season depends on it. Trust, also, in your club's proficiency on the counter-attack, where Wolff, Myrto Uzuni, and Osman Bukari are often at their most threatening. From that standpoint, the matchup plays to Austin's strengths despite the talent gap.

Even still, beating a full-strength and rested version of LAFC two out of three times, including at least once on the road, is a tall order. But the Verde and Black should have a mental edge. Not only can they draw on the confidence of sweeping the season series, but they're also playing with house money. Nobody expects them to progress past LAFC, and they have nothing to lose in the attempt. LAFC, meanwhile, is MLS Cup or bust. Every ounce of pressure is on them.

It's not David vs. Goliath per se, but it won't hurt to have a slingshot handy.

Game 1 of the best-of-three series takes place
Wed., Oct. 29, at 9:30pm at BMO Stadium, followed by Game 2 at Q2 Stadium on Sun., Nov. 2 at 7:30pm. Game 3, if necessary, will occur on Sat., Nov. 8 in Los Angeles,
with kickoff time TBD.

Frankenhooker FILM

WEDNESDAY 29, HYPERREAL FILM CLUB

Close to a masterpiece, this early Nineties horror comedy has all the signature delights that make Frank Henenlotter pictures great. For one, there are incredibly grimy and grounded New York City sets that anchor the zany antics of grieving mad scientist Jeffrey. While he motors around selling supercrack to unsuspecting yet drug-crazed sex workers – which causes them to explode, providing him with body parts to reform his deceased fiancée from her decapitated head down – the lights of NYC don't overwhelm so much as accentuate the thrills & chills. Taste – whether good or bad – doesn't really have a place here, but even if it did, your tongue'd be fried by the overwhelming fun spicing up this body-horror bonanza.

– JAMES SCOTT

Halloween (1978) + Mystery Film FILM

WEDNESDAY 29, PARAMOUNT THEATRE

Your spooky marathon party just got a top-notch RSVP: local film legend Robert Rodriguez. The Machete director swaps blades to present the chef's-knife-wielding Halloween, where Michael Myers slashes through a poor Illinois town after escaping a sanitarium. Rodriguez shares behind-the-scenes stories from the classic's director, John Carpenter. To top it all off, viewers get not one, but two good scares; Rodriguez ends the night by unmasking his own surprise flick pick. The Austin Chronicle – hey, that's us! – partners up with the Paramount to present the screening.

– FLORA BELLE FARR

Frankenstein (1931) With the Central Texas Philharmonic

FILM MUSIC

WEDNESDAY 29, CENTRAL LIBRARY

There've been countless opportunities to see the Boris Karloff classic Frankenstein over the last hundred years, but have you ever seen it like this? A chilling, thrilling evening at the gorgeous Central Library features the world-class Central Texas Philharmonic symphony playing live along with the iconic film on the big screen, enhancing all the terror and drama as Frankenstein's monster lurches and lumbers. It's alive!

– KAT MCNEVINS

AFI MUSIC

WEDNESDAY 29, ACL LIVE AT THE MOODY THEATER

After decades of combining and recombining sweaty punk, clubby electronics, and gothic rock, on their 12th(!) album, Silver Bleeds the Black Sun..., AFI have made the mid-Eighties goth album of their dreams, all grand sounds, grander emotions, and an ever-bigger bigness. (True heads already know this, but if you want a terrific look at how the band has retained its fan base through all sorts of stylistic changes, check out Andi Coulter's totally excellent 2024 book AFI for the full story). Long may they weep and moan.

– JOE GROSS

Haunted Candyland

COMMUNITY FAMILY

THURSDAY 30, WINDSOR PARK BRANCH LIBRARY

Why should Halloween be limited to just one day?! The Windsor Park Branch is getting a jump start on the scary-sweet holiday for everyone who just can't get enough or needs a practice run. Their aisles of books transform into a board-game-themed playland of haunted confections and deliciousness to die for. Get ready for the big day by trick-or-treating your way through the library, playing spooky games and crafting a one-of-a-kind treat-collecting pillowcase.

Rock the Park

Friday 24, Mueller Lake Park Outdoor Amphitheater

Two weeks removed from their ACL Fest debut, tireless world music trio the Point. replaces rap duo Tribe Mafia as this month's headliner for KUTX's free, family-friendly concert series. The Telephone Company opens.

Wicked Oaks Festival

Saturday 25 - Sunday 26, Carson Creek Ranch

Summoning Fest partners with Freaky Deaky and ILLfest to combine the experiences of all three festivals into a single, two-day event. Notable performers include BUNT., Eric Prydz, Flux Pavilion, Kaskade, and LP Giobbi.

Rico Nasty

Wednesday 29, Empire Garage

Ricoooooo! Rico Nasty makes up for the lack of that signature "Rico" ad-lib on her featureless Fueled by Ramen debut, LETHAL, with a buttery-smooth project full of varied flows and songs owing to punk, rap, and rock. SadBoi opens.

The Strip Club: The Crescent (Part 2)

Our grand tour continues with noodz, steamies, and K BBQ BY TAYLOR HOLLAND

Welcome back to the Strip Club, highlighting Austin's destination strip malls. Where else can you sip a smoky Old Fashioned in Misty Gray colored contacts? Play Kelp: Shark vs Octopus while simultaneously eating octopus balls and dissecting a squid-shaped fishing lure? Skim the scum off your soup pot for a clearer view of "Live Noodz"!?! The moon is in your eye, but there's no-a pizza pie, it's the Crescent!

(Editor's Note: This is the second installment in a two-part series on the Crescent.)

Lucky enough to live within trekking distance of the Red Line, an executive decision is made to circumvent the Crescent's cluster of a parking lot: Take the light rail to Crestview station, and walk from there. It's a slow ride where you can take it easy, but sadly, our local train has the same lingering aftertaste of pointlessness one gets from recycling trash.

Alighting and crossing Lamar from the stop isn't super titillating, but Sazan's fake-neon sign advertising "LIVE NOODZ" keeps me abreast. Once inside, everyone still has their top on, so it's time to liven this place up by nursing a Shun-sational Old Fashioned – with Bulleit Rye, plum wine simple syrup, charred orange, and bitters – a concoction served in a highball glass with a lid that traps woody smoke inside. Exotic and tasty, but still no barenaked ladies – which is fine by me, because if you've ever been to a nudist beach, you know they're mostly a bust.

But this isn't a strip club, it's a strip mall ramen joint where you can choose between Paitan, black, or vegan (plus a coterie of supplements), alongside starters like dumplings, takoyaki (battered octopus balls), wings, and tempura, plus seasonal items like katsu curry, mazemen (dried ramen bowl), and teriyaki chicken.

Rocking their $14 lunch special is a solid plan – though kinda rando – because it's a small ramen, a bowl of wings and fries, and a drink. If it's after 4:59pm, consider their $39 Omakase tasting menu with four hand rolls and a Paitan ramen, with optional ultra-rare Japanese whisky pairings – limited seating every evening but Monday. Great value, especially if you pair it with their kids-eat-free-ramen Tuesday.

Sazan's hand-rolled potstickers are made by Steamies, a delightful hole-in-the-wall a few doors down. Chef Preston Day, of Japanese/Chinese/Hawaiian descent, took over Steamies a few years ago and now offers nationwide delivery for their frozen dumplings.

The flavor of the month is firecracker shrimp with coconut lime sauce, and they're spectacular alongside an assortment of other dumplings (chicken and shiitake, pork and cabbage, vegan), an order of xiao long bao (soup dumplings), a stir fry vegetable rice bowl, and the star of the show, their Taiwanese beef taco – slow-cooked brisket and slaw inside a crispy scallion pancake, which is a delectable, over-the-top-savory slop fest.

For dessert, go next door, where Uncle Tetsu slings Japanese cheesecake. With branches as far-flung as Pakistan and Australia, these lovely rondelles present in delightful flavors such as pandan coconut, ube, strawberry, cookies n' cream, and matcha. Fluffy, and not too sweet.

The Crescent can be a lot of walking, so Footy Rooty's "30 mins Foot" for $25 is the play before diving into Korean chicken wings at bb.q Chicken, which has them in umpteen flavors including gang-jeong, galbi, and Gangnam Style, plus appropriate sides galore and a beer/soju selection.

There are several Japanese bric-a-bracs scattered around: Pinkbox gift shop has aisles of imported beauty care products, colored contact lenses, Labubus, Pocky, and exotic Pringles in flavors like roasted seaweed, tomato, cucumber, and black pepper steak, while Ellicor also has all the cutie-patootie stuff you can imagine. But Daiso is the place where you can, as the sign says, "Upgrade Your Life" with a squid fishing lure, a container of crispy crab snacks, or a Scum-Absorbing Sheet for your soup pot, which will come in handy at recently opened B2J Tasty Pot, whose brochures advertise the "Best Pot in the World." Been there, done that, but this is a dispensary for gigantic bowls of suan cai yu, a Sichuan sauerkraut fish and beef with pickled mustard greens.

Opting for the "Combo for 2" with a "small" bowl of Signature Spicy Sour Flavor, two add-ons (black fungus, A-choy leaf), two side dishes (pickled chicken gizzard, crispy fried pork belly), and rice is sure to satisfy, because it's a bonkers amount of food, and love at first bite as tender fish and beef bathe in spicy ferment. But it's the cold gizzards – doing salad cosplay dressed in red onion, cilantro, and chili oil – that transport diners to Chengdu. Mǎidān.

Complicating the chaotic scene in the parking lot are concrete islands housing snacky, drinky outfits 85° C Bakery Café, Starbucks, and Milk + Tea, but the main event on the archipelago is KBBOQ.

Akin to the DIY vibes at Soupleaf Hot Pot last week, these tables have grills built into them. My problem isn't so much cooking it myself as the pricey all-you-can-eat option. For that kind of money, my wallet wants full service and not eating myself sick to get my money's worth.

Thankfully, there are also plenty of amply portioned entrees available like bibimbap, galbi-jjim (short ribs), seafood jjampong (spicy noodle soup), doganitang (ox knee bone soup), and my personal favorite, jjajangmyeon (black bean noodles).

Trying to make up my mind, lots of waitstaff in black T-shirts are swirling, pushing carts of banchan around, seeming oddly expectant: How much will he eat? All he can? They seem disappointed when the upsell goes unaccepted, and a spicy pork bento is summoned, but guess what? It's still more than any person should eat in one sitting.

A huge pile of tender pork in sweet, spicy gochujang leads the way alongside a variety of sides: white rice, potstickers, japchae, kimchi, miso soup, and an incongruous serving of chopped lettuce topped with ranch dressing, which transports me not to Seoul, but to the truck stop cafe near my grandparents', um, ranch. Up there, folks eat salad with forks, but today my only readily available option is chopsticks. Awkward, but eventually the ranch makes its way into my hidden valley.

By the time the sides are waxed off, the moon is full, and most of my pork and rice remain. Carrying the leftovers home, the empty train provides ample space-time for the mind to wander: What if we banned all-you-can-eat buffets and fed the poor? What if we actually utilized our mass-transit system? Or stopped buying branded plastic junk from China? Big questions without easy answers. ■

Emma Stone and Jesse Plemons take a cutting from a bizarre Korean eco-satire, but it barely sprouts BY RICHARD WHITTAKER

The red sole of a Christian Louboutin high heel has become cinematic shorthand. It's the feminine version of those business cards that Patrick Bateman would drool over or a modernizing of Alexis Carrington's ludicrously over-padded shoulders. It speaks to a certain affluent cruelty, style without humanity, and provides an easy introduction to Michelle Fuller, pharmaceutical CEO, eco-criminal, and nemesis to obsessive beekeeper and UFO conspiracy nut, Teddy, in Bugonia.

Gender swapping the embodiment of capitalist greed is one of the first major changes that director Yorgos Lanthimos and screenwriter Will Tracy (The Menu) made for their loose adaptation of South Korean director Jang Joon-hwan's 2003 satire, Save the Green Planet! In the original version, Teddy analog Lee Byeong-gu kidnaps male executive Kang Man-shik. Here, Kang becomes Michelle, while Lee's doting girlfriend, Su-ni, becomes Don (newcomer Aidan Delbis), Teddy's tragically codependent cousin.

Changing the sex of the central dueling pair changes the dynamics, especially since Michelle is played by Lanthimos regular Emma Stone, while Teddy is played by Jesse Plemons, her Kinds of Kindness dance partner and Lanthimos' walking analogy for the delusional American male. Unlike the original, there's an inherent undertone of sexual violence when Teddy and sidekick Don abduct her, strip her, shave her head, chain her in the basement, and demand that she admits she's an agent of the emperor of Andromeda.

While Jang was quietly concentrating on the desperation of the working class, with a subtext that the rich and powerful may as well be aliens, the actual target of Lanthimos' remake seems much vaguer. The timing of the gender swapping is unfortunate to say the least, since a huge number of companies have used the Trump administration's anti-DEI witch hunt to purge their C-suites of any non-dudes. Beyond the fact that this would be another reason to work with Stone (this being their fourth consecutive collaboration), and the idea of a woman running a biotech company may make the audience make some Elizabeth Holmes connections, it's just a thread that neither gets pulled nor really woven into the material.

The draw is, of course, watching Plemons and Stone working together without the time constraints or forced oddities of Kinds of Kindness. Plemons remains the undisputed master of this kind of oblivious awkwardness, of characters who think their underdog status is always someone else's fault. Even with Teddy's tics and habits dialed up to 11, he's still the smaller presence than Stone, who continues her commitment (for better or for worse) to maximalist acting. Their scenes together, especially as she tries to manipulate the dim but determined Teddy, are undoubtedly fascinating, and layered with the vicious cunning that has always been Lanthimos' trademark.

But it's the excellence of execution that obfuscates that Jang's wild but pointed tragicomedy has lost its incisiveness in translation, its blunderbuss now loaded with feathers rather than buckshot. True, the odd quill may scratch the surface, but there's nothing really penetrating. Just as the gender swap doesn't really say anything about the modern workplace and corporate politics, neither does Teddy's paranoid mindset seem to have undergone any kind of updates, being more The X-Files-style "I want to believe" misguided heroism than Facebook-fueled mania. As for any eco-politics, it's tough to remember that the fate of Earth is supposed to be at stake. Some subplots seem designed simply to make Lanthimos laugh at his own transgressiveness, like having the local sheriff (Stavros Halkias) admit to sexually abusing Teddy as a kid. Meanwhile, there's the core problem of having dueling antagonists: Whether by interstellar edict or for profit, Michelle is killing the planet, and even if Teddy's right about her he's got too many dirty secrets to be likable. By the end, you may wonder whether their planet was ever worth saving. ■

What I like best about this style of exhibit is something I missed at the DAC: getting to know a bit about the employee artists.

From Dougherty Staff to Dougherty Artists

Staff exhibit features team but leaves bigger picture unpainted

BY CAROLINE DREW

For many of the folks behind the Dougherty Arts Center, doing their job right means visitors hardly notice them. Curating and coordinating exhibits, organizing youth and adult educational programming, keeping the doors open and the center safe and clean – all of these tasks uphold the arts programming we know and love and support the artwork that catches our attention in the gallery. Yet the hands and brains engaged in this work at the DAC are also creating art of their own, on display through November in its staff exhibit – though the collection could do more to celebrate the team.

The collection of multimedia works opens with theatre & event specialist Jefferson Lykins' kinetic mobile titled "Homage to Troy." The tiered, dangling piece connects partially transparent, pattern-filled squares and sparkling Christmas tree ornaments with utilitarian silver clasps and wooden dowels, scattering the gallery light into dazzling specks on the purple entry wall. Beside Lykins' mobile, visitor & volunteer services specialist Cidnye Stott's expertly woven knits adorn the space. Her wool handiwork demonstrates a varied weaving practice: crochet for "Hexagon Blanket" and weaving in her large "Log Cabin Variation."

Venturing further into the hallway exhibit, illustrations from culture & arts youth education programs specialist Catherine Chao showcase both her affinity for cute characters in "Occult Cat Botanical" and more evocative, seemingly personally inspired stylings. Her simple single-colored print, "Takes Me Back," depicts a mirrored girl, kneeling on a tiled floor in one dimension and spinning tracks on a turntable in its opposite. The two silhouettes smile at one another – one wistful, the other exhilarated by the music at her fingertips.

On the wall opposite, culture & arts program supervisor Lucy Miller-Downing's gold-framed collage triptych follows titular "Bubbles" through three scenes of childhood joy and curiosity. The floating blue orbs drift from the hands, and baskets, of her superimposed subjects, surrounding them as they step among larger-than-life fruits and adventure-story motifs – an open door, a many-sailed ship – interlaced with skillfully cut patterns, recalling psychedelic picture books and the wonder of youthful discovery.

Marketing representative Claire Bryant shares two evocative photographs in the exhibit, including "Pease Park Salmon Surprise," a conglomeration of brightly colored trash – candy wrappers, a bottle cap, a claw hair clip – congealed in a gelatinous form and paired with a sliced lime. The Jell-O shape is reminiscent of Seventies gelatin-encased appetizers, while the trash inside recalls disheartening images of plastic-filled fish and the onslaught of trash in our natural environments, both in neighborhood streams like the one that runs through Pease Park and the wider rivers and oceans to which it eventually leads. Bryant's second photo, "Hidden Mother," shows a baby in a green cotton jumper nearly afloat in a mother's lap, hidden, as the name suggests, by a blue-and-black rose-patterned blanket. Aside from the mother's tattooed hands and a slip of her forearms, all we see is a human shape. The photo could speak to stories of adoption or the erasure of personhood felt by many mothers in the early days of childrearing. Without an artist statement or any information other than the piece's title, it's hard to say.

Bryant also works as a teaching artist in DAC's classrooms, where ceramicist Jon Nelson and oil painter George Huffman also instruct. Two of Nelson's delightful three-dimensional creatures are on display, springing forth from their planet of scrappy, wide-faced whimsy. Likewise, two of Huffman's highly textured paintings – mixing figurative and abstract, cubist and naturalist tendencies – hang on the DAC walls. These works, and many more, demonstrate the rich tapestry of aesthetic styles and creative practices that foreground the DAC's work.

Staff exhibits are a niche gallery genre I adore. It brings life and personality to the often stoic presence of museum docents and door greeters and reminds audiences how much unseen artistry contributes to a well-organized exhibit or art events. The folks behind community-fostering art centers like the Dougherty and larger-scale museums alike are drawn to their work, often, by their own discerning aesthetic eye, and are creating art alongside their other duties. What I like best about this style of exhibit is something I missed at the DAC: getting to know a bit about the employee artists. The internet sleuthing that contributed to this review is fun for me too, sure, but only provided me with a job title and maybe a bit about the creator's other works.

Reading an artist statement and job description can color in the space between institution and individual, connecting us to their multifaceted work. How we see art, how we see our jobs, and how the two might impact each other is the chief insight of these shows – and that it takes all kinds of artists to run a museum. ■

The Luv Doc

Dear Doc,

Something has been bothering me a long time. The owner of a near-UT campus (now closed) BBQ joint informed me that the big dog, Salt Lick BBQ in Driftwood, did not actually BBQ their brisket using wood but baked it in ovens and adding smoke flavoring. Can this be true? Ovens do seem visible when you walk from the parking lot to the restaurant. As you enter the restaurant a circular pit with meat all around it is smoking and smells delicious! An employee is slicing and dicing large amounts of meat. If you mingle around the pit you can hear customer after customer saying, "Look where they BBQ the meat!" It seems this is actually a "show pit" to display the product before slicing and nothing is actually cooked there. Can this be true and why has this not been addressed before? — Bothered by Baked Brisket Rumors

"Bully Show Pit"

If I may paraphrase Academy Award-winning actor and bubblegum rapper Will Smith, "Take that Salt Lick brisket out your fucking mouth!!" You don't deserve its meaty, mouthwatering blend of smoke, special spices, and savory goodness. Now, look, it's not a secret that back in 1969, when Stanley Kubrick was faking the moon landing on a soundstage in room 237 of the U.S. Space and Rocket Center in Huntsville, Alabama, he got a serious hankering for some slow-smoked brisket. It's also within the realm of possibility that the caterer for that pioneering deepfake film shoot could have been Salt Lick owner Thurman Roberts who, as is common knowledge, was alive at the time and already running a brisket smoking operation in southern Hays County, which is only an 878-mile drive from the U.S. Space and Rocket Center. Coincidence? I'll let you decide, but if Kubrick could fake putting a man on the moon, isn't it also possible that he somehow convinced Thurman Roberts that he didn't need to spend 20-24 hours slow-smoking his brisket when he could simply cook it in an oven and then douse it with a generous coating of liquid smoke? I don't know about you, but I can't write that possibility off entirely because I don't have enough information — certainly not as much information as the owner of a closed UT-area BBQ joint would.

Me? I tend to be one of those "you don't want to know how the sausage is made" types — mainly because I know how the sausage is made and it's pretty fucking disgusting — even the really good sausage. If, for some reason you haven't supped on the fruit of knowledge, watching sausage get made is only palatable to the sort of people who would enjoy watching the entire Human Centipede Trilogy in one sitting — basically psychopaths. I should probably disclose here that while I have seen sausage being made, I have seen none of the Human Centipede films. I'm not a fan of the horror genre and have serious trust issues with people who are. That said, I've caught a few Human Centipede trailers on YouTube and I think I get the basic gist. It's probably not as traumatizing as seeing a piston violently penetrate a cow's skull, rendering it essentially brain dead so it can be bled, eviscerated, and carved up into choicer and choicer cuts of meat, while the remaining beef byproducts are ground up and stuffed back into the cow's — or very likely some other cow's — intestine. Unlike the Human Centipede however, there is ideally way less poop involved.

If you're into eating cows, brisket is a rich man's game. That meat comes right off the breast, which is a seemingly safe distance from all the cow's orifices. You gotta pay extra for that. It's usually the priciest cut on a barbecue joint's menu. This holds true at the Salt Lick as well, unless you're eating buffalo.

But here's the deal: If it tastes good and doesn't give you intestinal distress, what do you care whether it's basted in Dr Pepper and corn syrup and fast-cooked in a microwave? Are you trying to eat the process or the product? Would you want to eat shoe leather if it was slow-smoked for two weeks? Of course not. Eat your damn brisket and stop asking questions.

Mr. Smarty Pants Knows

Daniel David Palmer, the creator of chiropractic, once restored a man's hearing by slapping him on the back after telling a joke.

Donn Beach, the founding father of tiki culture, was from Texas. In 1933, he opened his first tiki bar, Don's Beachcomber in Hollywood.

While in a little hotel room in Kathmandu, Todd Rundgren composed a song in his head, but didn't have a recorder. Instead, he imagined playing the piano part and when he finally got to a piano he played it. The song is "Lost Horizon."

Among Australian tradesmen, the slang term for an office worker is "desk diver" or "shiny bum."

About 5,000 long-tailed macaque monkeys have taken over Angaur, a remote island at the southern tip of Palau. The northern part of the island is littered with bombs from a 1944 World War II battle that has kept people out, but created a haven for the monkeys.

Above is information that Mr. Smarty Pants read in a book, a magazine, or the newspaper; heard on the radio; saw on television; or overheard at a party. Got facts? Write to Mr. Smarty Pants at the Chronicle, or email mrpants@austinchronicle.com.

FREE WILL ASTROLOGY OCT. 24 - OCT. 30

by Rob Brezsny

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Many cultures regard obsidian as having protective powers against negative energy. This makes it popular for healing talismans. Obsidian mirrors have often been used to scry for visions and prophecies. Because obsidian is so sharp, ancient peoples incorporated it into tools used to hunt for food, like knives and arrowheads. In modern times, obsidian is used for its beauty in tabletops, tiles, and architectural components. Do you know how this precious substance is formed? It's born in the shock between elements: molten lava meets water or cool air and hardens so quickly that crystals can't form, trapping a mirror-dark clarity in volcanic glass. I propose we make it your symbolic power object in the coming months, Scorpio.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Medieval alchemists engaged in literal laboratory work as they attempted to create elixirs of immortality, concoct medicines to heal diseases, and metamorphose lead into gold. But the modern practice of alchemy is primarily a psychological effort to achieve awakening and enlightenment. In the early stages of the work, the seeker experiences the metaphorical "black sun." It's a dark radiance, the beginning of creative decay, that fuels the coming transformation. I suspect you now have the potential to call on this potent asset, Sagittarius. It's wild, though. You must proceed with caution and discernment. What worn-out aspects of yourself are you ready to let rot, thereby fertilizing future growth?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): In Japan, shakkei refers to the practice of "borrowed scenery." The idea is to create a garden so that surrounding features become part of its expansive context: distant mountains, an expanse of sky, or a nearby body of water. The artistry lies in allowing the horizon to merge gracefully with what's close at hand. I recommend this approach to you, Capricorn. Frame your current project with a backdrop that enlarges it. Partner with places, influences, or long-view purposes that augment your meaning and enhance your beauty. Align your personal actions with a vast story so they send even more potent ripples out into the world.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Computer scientist Radia Perlman is the "Mother of the Internet." She invented the Spanning Tree Protocol, a component that's essential for the flow of online data. Despite her work's splashy importance, hardly anyone knows of her. With that in mind, I remind you: Some revolutions unfold with little fanfare; positive transformations may be inconspicuous. How does that relate to you? I suspect the next beautiful or useful thing you contribute may also be veiled and underestimated, at least at first. And yet it may ultimately generate a shift more significant than you can now imagine. My advice is to trust the long game. You're doing good work, though its recognition may be late in arriving.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The mystical Persian poet Hafez wrote, "Fear is the cheapest room in the house. I'd like to see you living in better conditions." Picture that shabby room, Pisces: cramped, dim, damp. Now imagine you have resolved to never again live in such a place. In fact, sometime soon you will move, metaphorically speaking, into a spacious, high-ceilinged place with wide windows and skylights, fresh air flowing through. I believe life will conspire on your behalf if you initiate this bold move. You now have extra power to exorcise at least some of your angsts and embrace liberating joy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): I bet your upcoming night dreams will include marriages, mating dances, and sacramental unions. Even if you are not planning deeper mergers with trustworthy allies in your waking life, your subconscious mind is musing on such possibilities. I hope this horoscope inspires you to make such fantasies more conscious. What collaborations and blends would serve you well? Give your imagination permission to ponder new and exciting connections. Visualize yourself thriving amidst new connections.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): In winemaking, malolactic fermentation softens a wine's tart malic acid into gentler lactic acid. This process imparts a creamier and rounder mouthfeel, while preserving the wine's structure. In accordance with astrological omens, I invite you to adopt this as your metaphor of power. See if you can refine your intensity without losing your integrity. Keep things interesting but soften the edges a bit. Introduce warmth and steadiness into provocative situations so they're free of irritation and easier to engage with, but still enriching.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The coming weeks will be an excellent time to practice the art of strategic disruption. One way to do it is to interrupt your patterns so they don't calcify and obstruct you. Just for fun, you could eat breakfast for dinner. Take a different route to a familiar place. Talk to a person you would usually avoid. Say no when you'd normally say yes, or vice versa. Part of your brain loves efficiency, habits, and well-worn grooves. But grooves can become ruts. As a rousing spiritual experiment, you could do things differently for no reason except to prove to yourself that you can. Playful chaos can be a form of prayer. Messing with your standard approaches will unleash your creativity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): In Shinto mythology, Ameno-Uzume is the goddess of mirth and revelry. In one story, she seduces the sun out of its hiding place by performing a humorous and provocative dance. I am sending her over to your sphere right now in the hope that she will coax you out of your comfort zone of retreat, control, and self-protection. While I'm glad you have taken this break to recharge your spiritual batteries, I think it's time to come out and play. You have done important work to nurture and process your deep feelings. Now we would love you to express what you've learned with freewheeling panache.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Ancient cultures in Sumeria, Egypt, and China used willow bark as a pain reliever. Many centuries later, in 1828, European scientists isolated the chemical salicin from the bark and used it to create aspirin. What had been a folk remedy became a widely used medicine all over the planet. Is there a metaphorically comparable development unfolding in your life? I think so. Something you've known or practiced could be evolving into its next form. The world may finally be ready to receive wisdom, a technique, or an insight you've used for a long time. Consider refining and upgrading it. Share it in ways that meet the present moment's specific need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In honor of your special needs right now, Virgo, I am coining a new English word: edge-uation. It's like "education" but with an extra edge. Though book-learning is included in its purview, it also requires you to seek out raw teaching in all possible ways: on the streets, the bedroom, the natural world, everywhere. To properly pursue your higher edge-education, you must hunt down provocative influences, thought-provoking adventures, and unfamiliar stimulation. Make the whole world your laboratory and classroom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): When I began writing horoscopes years ago, I had greater empathy with some of the signs than with others. But I worked hard to overcome this bias, and now I truly love and understand every tribe of the zodiac equally. I attribute this accomplishment to the fact that I have three Libra planets in my natal chart. They have propelled me to develop a warm, affectionate, fair-minded objectivity. I have a deeply honed capacity for seeing and liking people as they genuinely are, without imposing my expectations and projections onto them. The coming weeks will be an excellent time to tap into these qualities in yourself, dear Libra.

OBITUARIES + MEMORIALS

CONNIE KAY SWEARINGEN

Connie Kay Swearingen, a long time Austinite and renowned chef, passed away on July 5, 2022 at the age of 66. Connie was the daughter of the late Alan and Jo Ann Swearingen. Connie, born November 10, 1955 in Herrin, Illinois, found her way to Austin and then never left.

Please join us for a celebration of Connie's life at the South Austin Community Garden (SACG), Saturday November 8, 2025, 10 am to 12 noon as we dedicate a memorial bench in her honor. The memorial bench has recently been delivered to the SACG site. The gardening community invites everyone who wants to participate in her celebration of life to join us as we dedicate the bench.

The garden is located on South 5th Street just south of Cumberland and just south of the Denizen Condo Complex at 2800 South 5th.

Connie was a valuable member for over 25 years where she served on various coordinator positions and contributed delicious dishes to share at the monthly potluck events. She continued gardening to the very last days of her life.

After graduating from The University of Texas at Austin with a BS in Nutrition, Connie started her career in the culinary industry. She worked for the State of Texas for many years, first serving as the Executive Chef in the Lieutenant Governor's Reception room at the Texas State Capitol. In 2003, then Governor Rick Perry and his wife Anita hired her to become Executive Chef at the Texas Governor's Mansion. Connie remained in that position as the Executive Chef for the Texas Governors Rick Perry and Gregg Abbot until her retirement in 2019.

Connie loved everything outdoors. Her favorite days were spent at the South Austin Community Garden growing delicious veggies that she cooked to perfection. Connie treasured her ticket stub collection from the numerous live music performances she attended from Prince to the Allman Brothers to Asleep at the Wheel, even meeting her future husband at the iconic Armadillo World Headquarters. She was passionate about the environment and would give you "a piece of her mind" if you even mentioned using pesticides or refusing to recycle everything possible. She loved traveling the world with friends. Connie is survived by her husband, Stuart Wagner, and numerous relatives throughout the country. For further information contact southatxgarden@gmail.com.

TEXAS COMMISSION ON ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND PRELIMINARY DECISION FOR WATER QUALITY LAND APPLICATION PERMIT FOR MUNICIPAL WASTEWATER RENEWAL

PERMIT NO. WQ0014203001

APPLICATION AND PRELIMINARY DECISION. MRG ATX Holdings, LLC, 13500 Farm-to-Market Road 2769, Austin, Texas 78726, has applied to the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ) for a renewal of TCEQ Permit No. WQ0014203001 which authorizes the disposal of treated domestic wastewater at a daily average flow not to exceed 27,000 gallons per day via public access subsurface drip irrigation system with a minimum area of 6.3 acres. This permit will not authorize a discharge of pollutants into water in the state. TCEQ received this application on October 2, 2024.

The wastewater treatment facility and disposal site are located at 13500 Farm-to-Market Road 2769, in the City of Austin, in Travis County, Texas 78726. The wastewater treatment facility and disposal site are located in the drainage basin of Lake Travis in Segment No. 1404 of the Colorado River Basin. This link to an electronic map of the site or facility's general location is provided as a public courtesy and is not part of the application or notice. For the exact location, refer to the application. <https://gisweb.tceq.texas.gov/LocationMapper/?marker=-97.869444,30.442222&level=18>

The TCEQ Executive Director has completed the technical review of the application and prepared a draft permit. The draft permit, if approved, would establish the conditions under which the facility must operate. The Executive Director has made a preliminary decision that this permit, if issued, meets all statutory and regulatory requirements. The permit application, Executive Director's preliminary decision, and draft permit are available for viewing and copying at Austin Central Library, Circulation Desk, 710 West Cesar Chavez Street, Austin, in Travis County, Texas. The application, including any updates, and associated notices are available electronically at the following webpage: <https://www.tceq.texas.gov/permitting/wastewater/pending-permits/tlap-applications>.

ALTERNATIVE LANGUAGE NOTICE. Alternative language notice in Spanish is available at <https://www.tceq.texas.gov/permitting/wastewater/plain-language-summaries-and-public-notices>. El aviso de idioma alternativo en español está disponible en <https://www.tceq.texas.gov/permitting/wastewater/plain-language-summaries-and-public-notices>.

PUBLIC COMMENT / PUBLIC MEETING. You may submit public comments or request a public meeting about this application.] The purpose of a public meeting is to provide the opportunity to submit comments or to ask questions about the application. TCEQ holds a public meeting if the Executive Director determines that there is a significant degree of public interest in the application or if requested by a local legislator. A public meeting is not a contested case hearing.

OPPORTUNITY FOR A CONTESTED CASE HEARING. After the deadline for submitting public comments, the Executive Director will consider all timely comments and prepare a response to all relevant and material, or significant public comments. Unless the application is directly referred for a contested case hearing, the response to comments will be mailed to everyone who submitted public comments and to those persons who are on the mailing list for this application. If comments are received, the mailing will also provide instructions for requesting a contested case hearing or reconsideration of the Executive Director's decision. A contested case hearing is a legal proceeding similar to a civil trial in a state district court.

TO REQUEST A CONTESTED CASE HEARING, YOU MUST INCLUDE THE FOLLOWING ITEMS IN YOUR REQUEST: your name, address, phone number; applicant's name and proposed permit number; the location and distance of your property/activities relative to the proposed facility; a specific description of how you would be adversely affected by the facility in a way not common to the general public; a list of all disputed issues of fact that you submit during the comment period; and the statement "[I/we] request a contested case hearing." If the request for contested case hearing is filed on behalf of a group or association, the request must designate the group's representative for receiving future correspondence; identify by name and physical address an individual member of the group who would be adversely affected by the proposed facility or activity; provide the information discussed above regarding the affected member's location and distance from the facility or activity; explain how and why the member would be affected; and explain how the interests the group seeks to protect are relevant to the group's purpose.

Following the close of all applicable comment and request periods, the Executive Director will forward the application and any requests for reconsideration or for a contested case hearing to the TCEQ Commissioners for their consideration at a scheduled Commission meeting.

The Commission may only grant a request for a contested case hearing on issues the requestor submitted in their timely comments that were not subsequently withdrawn. If a hearing is granted, the subject of a hearing will be limited to disputed issues of fact or mixed questions of fact and law relating to relevant and material water quality concerns submitted during the comment period. TCEQ may act on an application to renew a permit for discharge of wastewater without providing an opportunity for a contested case hearing if certain criteria are met.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR ACTION. The Executive Director may issue final approval of the application unless a timely contested case hearing request or request for reconsideration is filed. If a timely hearing request or request for reconsideration is filed, the Executive Director will not issue final approval of the permit and will forward the application and request to the TCEQ Commissioners for their consideration at a scheduled Commission meeting.

MAILING LIST. If you submit public comments, a request for a contested case hearing or a reconsideration of the Executive Director's decision, you will be added to the mailing list for this specific application to receive future public notices mailed by the Office of the Chief Clerk. In addition, you may request to be placed on: (1) the permanent mailing list for a specific applicant name and permit number; and/or (2) the mailing list for a specific county. If you wish to be placed on the permanent and/or the county mailing list, clearly specify which list(s) and send your request to TCEQ Office of the Chief Clerk at the address below.

All written public comments and public meeting requests must be submitted to the Office of the Chief Clerk, MC 105, Texas Commission on Environmental Quality, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, TX 78711-3087 or electronically at www.tceq.texas.gov/goto/comment within 30 days from the date of newspaper publication of this notice.

INFORMATION AVAILABLE ONLINE. For details about the status of the application, visit the Commissioners' Integrated Database at www.tceq.texas.gov/goto/cid. Search the database using the permit number for this application, which is provided at the top of this notice.

AGENCY CONTACTS AND INFORMATION. Public comments and requests must be submitted either electronically at www.tceq.texas.gov/goto/comment, or in writing to the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality, Office of the Chief Clerk, MC 105, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711-3087. Any personal information you submit to the TCEQ will become part of the agency's record; this includes email addresses. For more information about this permit application or the permitting process, please call the TCEQ Public Education Program, Toll Free, at 1-800-687-4040 or visit their website at www.tceq.texas.gov/goto/pep. # Comisión De Calidad Ambiental Del Estado De Texas

AVISO DE SOLICITUD Y DECISIÓN PRELIMINAR PARA PERMISO PARA APLICACIÓN DE LA CALIDAD DEL AGUA EN TERRENOS PARA AGUAS RESIDUALES MUNICIPALES RENOVACIÓN

PERMISO NO. WQ0014203001

SOLICITUD Y DECISIÓN PRELIMINAR. MRG ATX Holdings, LLC, 13500 Farm-to-Market Road 2769, Austin, Texas 78726 ha solicitado a la Comisión de Calidad Ambiental del Estado de Texas (TCEQ) por una renovación para autorizar WQ0014203001 que autoriza la disposición de aguas residuales domésticas tratadas a un caudal medio diario que no excede los 27,000 galones por dia mediante un sistema de riego por goteo subterráneo de acceso público con una superficie mínima de 6.3 acres. Este permiso no autorizará una descarga de contaminantes a las aguas del estado. La TCEQ recibió esta solicitud el October 2, 2024.

La planta y el sitio de disposición están ubicadas en 13500 Farm-to-Market Road 2769, en la ciudad de Austin, en el Condado de Travis, Texas. La planta y el sitio de disposición están ubicados en la cuenca de drenaje de Lake Travis en el Segmento No. 1404 de la Cuenca del Cuenca del Río Colorado . Este enlace a un mapa electrónico de la ubicación general del sitio o de la instalación es proporcionado como una cortesía y no es parte de la solicitud o del aviso. Para la ubicación exacta, consulte la solicitud. <https://gisweb.tceq.texas.gov/LocationMapper/?marker=-97.869444,30.442222&level=18>

El Director Ejecutivo de la TCEQ ha completado la revisión técnica de la solicitud y ha preparado un borrador del permiso. El borrador del permiso, si es aprobado, establecería las condiciones bajo las cuales la instalación debe operar. El Director Ejecutivo ha tomado una decisión preliminar que si este permiso es emitido, cumple con todos los requisitos normativos y legales. La solicitud del permiso, la decisión preliminar del Director Ejecutivo y el borrador del permiso están disponibles para leer y copiar en Austin Central Library, Circulation Desk, 710 West Cesar Chavez Street, Austin, in Travis County, Texas. La solicitud (cualquier actualización y aviso inclusivo) está disponible electrónicamente en la siguiente página web: <https://www.tceq.texas.gov/permitting/wastewater/pending-permits/tlap-applications>.

AVISO DE IDIOMA ALTERNATIVO. El aviso de idioma alternativo en español está disponible <https://www.tceq.texas.gov/permitting/wastewater/pending-permits/tlap-applications>.

COMENTARIO PÚBLICO / REUNIÓN PÚBLICA. Usted puede presentar comentarios públicos o pedir una reunión pública sobre esta solicitud. El propósito de una reunión pública es dar la oportunidad de presentar comentarios o hacer preguntas acerca de la solicitud. La TCEQ realiza una reunión pública si el Director Ejecutivo determina que hay un grado de interés público suficiente en la solicitud o si un legislador local lo pide. Una reunión pública no es una audiencia administrativa de lo contencioso.

OPORTUNIDAD DE UNA AUDIENCIA ADMINISTRATIVA DE LO CONTENCIOSO. Después del plazo para presentar comentarios públicos, el Director Ejecutivo considerará todos los comentarios apropiados y preparará una respuesta a todo los comentarios públicos esenciales, pertinentes, o significativos. A menos que la solicitud haya sido referida directamente a una audiencia administrativa de lo contencioso, la respuesta a los comentarios y la decisión del Director Ejecutivo sobre la solicitud serán enviados por correo a todos los que presentaron un comentario público y a las personas que están en la lista para recibir avisos sobre esta solicitud. Si se reciben comentarios, el aviso también proveerá instrucciones para pedir una reconsideración de la decisión del Director Ejecutivo y para pedir una audiencia administrativa de lo contencioso. Una audiencia administrativa de lo contencioso es un procedimiento legal similar a un procedimiento legal civil en un tribunal de distrito del estado.

PARA SOLICITAR UNA AUDIENCIA DE CASO IMPUGNADO, USTED DEBE INCLUIR EN SU SOLICITUD LOS SIGUIENTES DATOS: su nombre, dirección, y número de teléfono; el nombre del solicitante y número del permiso; la ubicación y distancia de su propiedad/actividad con respecto a la instalación; una descripción específica de la forma cómo usted sería afectado adversamente por el sitio de una manera no común al público en general; una lista de todas las cuestiones de hecho en disputa que usted presente durante el período de comentarios; y la declaración "[Yo/nosotros] solicitó/solicitamos una audiencia de caso impugnado". Si presenta la petición para una audiencia de caso impugnado de parte de un grupo o asociación, debe identificar una persona que representa al grupo para recibir correspondencia en el futuro; identificar el nombre y la dirección de un miembro del grupo que sería afectado adversamente por la planta o la actividad propuesta; proveer la información indicada anteriormente con respecto a la ubicación del miembro afectado y su distancia de la planta o actividad propuesta; explicar cómo y por qué el miembro sería afectado; y explicar cómo los intereses que el grupo desea proteger son pertinentes al propósito del grupo.

Después del cierre de todos los períodos de comentarios y de petición que aplican, el Director Ejecutivo enviará la solicitud y cualquier petición para reconsideración o para una audiencia de caso impugnado a los Comisionados de la TCEQ para su consideración durante una reunión programada de la Comisión. La Comisión sólo puede conceder una solicitud de una audiencia de caso impugnado sobre los temas que el solicitante haya presentado en sus comentarios oportunos que no fueron retirados posteriormente. Si se concede una audiencia, el tema de la audiencia estará limitado a cuestiones de hecho en disputa o cuestiones mixtas de hecho y de derecho relacionadas a intereses pertinentes y materiales de calidad del agua que se hayan presentado durante el período de comentarios. Si ciertos criterios se cumplen, la TCEQ puede actuar sobre una solicitud para renovar un permiso sin proveer una oportunidad de una audiencia administrativa de lo contencioso.

ACCIÓN DEL DIRECTOR EJECUTIVO. El Director Ejecutivo puede emitir una aprobación final de la solicitud a menos que exista un pedido antes del plazo de vencimiento de una audiencia administrativa de lo contencioso o se ha presentado un pedido de reconsideración. Si un pedido ha llegado antes del plazo de vencimiento de la audiencia o el pedido de reconsideración ha sido presentado, el Director Ejecutivo no emitirá una aprobación final sobre el permiso y enviará la solicitud y el pedido a los Comisionados de la TCEQ para consideración en una reunión programada de la Comisión.

LISTA DE CORREO. Si somete comentarios públicos, un pedido para una audiencia administrativa de lo contencioso o una reconsideración de la decisión del Director Ejecutivo, la Oficina del Secretario Principal enviará por correo los avisos públicos en relación con la solicitud. Además, puede pedir que la TCEQ ponga su nombre en una o más de las listas correos siguientes (1) la lista de correo permanente para recibir los avisos de los solicitantes indicado por nombre y número del permiso específico y/o (2) la lista de correo de todas las solicitudes en un condado específico. Si desea que se agregue su nombre en una de las listas designe cada lista(s) y envíe por correo su pedido a la Oficina del Secretario Principal de la TCEQ.

Todos los comentarios escritos del público y los pedidos una reunión deben ser presentados durante los 30 días después de la publicación del aviso a la Oficina del Secretario Principal, MC 105, TCEQ, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, TX 78711-3087 o por el internet a www.tceq.texas.gov/about/comments.html. Tenga en cuenta que cualquier información personal que usted proporcione, incluyendo su nombre, número de teléfono, dirección de correo electrónico y dirección física pasarán a formar parte del registro público de la Agencia.

CONTACTOS E INFORMACIÓN DE LA AGENCIA. Los comentarios y solicitudes públicas deben enviarse electrónicamente a <https://www14.tceq.texas.gov/epic/eComment/>, o por escrito a Texas Commission on Environmental Quality, Office of the Chief Clerk, MC-105, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711-3087. Cualquier información personal que envíe a la TCEQ pasará a formar parte del registro de la agencia; esto incluye las direcciones de correo electrónico. Para obtener más información sobre esta solicitud de permiso o el proceso de permisos, llame al Programa de Educación Pública de la TCEQ sin cargo, al 1-800-687-4040 o visite su sitio web en www.tceq.texas.gov/goto/pep.
